AIR FORCE AS FIRST LINE DEFENDER IS PLEA

Col. Mitchell, At Farewell Banquet, Tells Hope Of U. S. Security

BULLETIN

SDBURY, Mass., April 27.—Airplanes of the future will prevent warfare by holding a threat over the heads of those who make war, Henry Ford declared in an interview this afternoon. When financiers and profiteers realize that bombs can be dropped on them they will find it advisable to become pacifists, Ford said.

The public, declared Ford at historic Wayside inn, is becoming more and more aware that war is purely a commercial proposition and eventually this knowledge will be used by private owners of airplanes to prevent it.

"Everything that is of use commercially is good for defense," continues Ford. "Look at the motor car during the last war. I expect to spend a lot of time developing a reliable engine for airplanes."

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The establishment of the air force as the first line of national defense instead of the now antiquated navy and land forces, is the hope of national security of the future, Colonel William M. Mitchell, retiring assistant chief of the air service, declared today at a farewell luncheon given in his honor by flying officers.

Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of air service, and Brigadier-General James E. Feltch, who succeeds Mitchell, were also present. Both paid tribute to Mitchell's work in behalf of aeronautics and expressed their sorrow at having him leave Washington.

Fetchet Ready To Take General Mitchell's Place

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—He has been in Washington several days now and scarcely anyone has known anything about it. He is quietly fitting himself to take over the duties of General "Billy" Mitchell as assistant chief of the air service. He is the calm after the storm. There is nothing of the politician about Lieut.-Col. James E. Fetchet, but he is of the army born and bred.

He comes, as the saying goes, at old army stock. He was born on a frontier post. His father was a hard riding cavalryman of a famous regiment. Both father and son were killed in action.

All eight round-the-world flyers were awarded the distinguished service cross but only three were near enough to Washington to be presented today. Others will be presented with their medals at their present stations.

SHEPHERD TRIAL SET FOR MAY 18

Separate Hearing to Be Plan for Alleged Prisoner of Box

CHICAGO, April 27.—Trial of William D. Shepherd on the charge of murdering his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McCintock, was set for May 18 by Judge Thomas J. Lynch today.

Shepherd will be tried alone as the state announced its intention of asking for a separate trial for Dr. Charles C. Faiman, indicted jointly with Shepherd, in order to use him as the chief witness against Shepherd.

Dr. Faiman's trial also was set officially for May 18 but the state on that date will ask severance. Judge Lynch set the trial date after a long colloquy between counsel, in which Attorney William S. Stewart again made a demand for bail for his client and which again was denied.

Before the court session, Mrs. Julia Shepherd spent a fearful few minutes with her husband in the jury room adjoining the court. It was the first time she had seen him since he was taken to jail.

Boston Symphony Split Following Big Shakeup

BOSTON, April 27.—The greatest shakeup in the history of the Boston Symphony orchestra, involving the departure of nearly a score of famous musicians, has taken place, according to the Boston Evening American today. The shakeup, it was said, was engineered by Serge Koussevitzky, Russian conductor, with the support of the trustees.

SHIPS ENGAGE IN WAR OFF HONOLULU

Both Fleets Claim Victory As Climax In Maneuvers Of Navy Reached

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
For International News Service.

HONOLULU, April 27.—The maneuvers of the American army and navy off Honolulu reached the climax today.

Both sides claimed victory as the "blue" fleet assisted Oahu island, on which is located the naval base, Pearl Harbor, and the "black" forces maintained a stiff defense.

Loss of life has been heavy, the umpires reported.

The first official decision of the umpires in the huge war game to test the defensive strength of the Hawaiian islands was handed down when they announced the attacking force of the "blues" had seized Molokai and Lanai islands, but had met with severe losses.

Activities today, the second day of the maneuvers, were marked by increased air forces and light naval equipment on both sides.

First Day's War. Reviewing the first day's activities in the mimic war, the umpires officially announced that the scouting fleet with four cruisers and eighteen destroyers was discovered in Molokai harbor by patrol planes of the "black" defending forces.

After the landing of the U. S. S. Shawmut, attempted to land the "blue" forces but was resisted by patrol planes, which attacked the Shawmut. Submarines of the two forces were engaged in a running battle and two "black" bombers attacked the "blue" destroyer Lawrence from an altitude of 2000 feet.

Two destroyers and a mine layer of the "blue" forces rushing toward Honolulu were "sunk" off Diamond Head by coast battery fire, the umpires announced.

Sub-tender 'Sunk' The "black" sub-tender Ludlow was "sunk" by a blue submarine southeast of Oahu. "Black" airplanes were engaged by the "enemy" off Oahu but the results are not known as yet. The "blues" apparently have a cordon of submarines surrounding Oahu and a major engagement is imminent.

It is believed the marine forces of the "blue" fleet will shortly attempt a landing. Indications are that the "enemy" is closing in on all sides today and contact with the main portion of the fleet is looked for hourly.

Four Children Killed Playing With Powder

MOLALLA, Ore., April 27.—Fortitude of six small children, four of whom are dead, stood out today as details were recounted of a death-dealing powder blast which occurred Saturday in the small, isolated settlement of Scotts Mills, 16 miles south of here.

Powder stored in a small building adjoining the Kolschinski farm exploded with a terrific blast when one of the small boys of the family touched a match to it. Six of the seven children were playing in the store house at the time and they received the full force of the explosion.

Joe, 14; Carl, 9; Paul, 5, all died in the hospital after a 35-mile ride over rough roads in a wagon to Oregon City. Clare, 11, died shortly after the blast, and Wessen, 7, was believed to be fatally burned. Another of the Kolschinski boys was injured.

Germans May Obtain Loans For Financing

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as president of Germany "will not reduce the opportunity of Germany to obtain loans in the United States for financing purposes," it was announced at the treasury department this afternoon.

The Hindenburg victory, a high treasury official said, would have "no economic or permanent political effect on the future of Germany," and would not interfere with that nation's quest for financial aid from American sources.

The announcement was made to offset rumors that were current prior to the election that a Hindenburg victory would result in a financial boycott of Germany by American bankers. Such a suggested boycott also was denied by Secretary of State Kellogg just prior to the election.

POLICE IN HUNT FOR 2 CONVICTS

Believe Escaped Prisoners Headed This Way In Stolen Automobile

Armed with shotguns, Los Angeles county deputy sheriffs today were lying in wait at Saugus, thirty-five miles north of here, following a tip that Joe Tanko and Floyd Hall, escaped convicts, would pass there in a stolen car.

Although they had received no definite information at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Glendale police announced they are ready at a moment's notice to aid in the search for the pair if they make their way into this district. A close watch is being kept to prevent them from passing through this area if they have obtained an automobile. If Tanko and Hall elude the deputy sheriffs at Saugus it is likely that they will attempt to go through Glendale. It is believed they are trying to reach old Mexico.

Tanko and Hall escaped from San Quentin more than two weeks ago and later shot a policeman at Sacramento, where they terrorized the outlying districts for several days. They eluded all posers that attempted to capture them there.

Mine Explosion Takes Lives Of Five Miners

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 27.—Five men lost their lives in an explosion in the mine of the Westmoreland Coal Co. at Mill Grove, according to D. J. Parker, chief engineer of the United States bureau of mines rescue station here, who returned to Pittsburgh after the bodies were recovered from the mine today.

GERMANY WILL PAY DEBTS IS CLAIM

Ambassador To U. S. Tells Prominent Financiers Policy Unchanged

BULLETIN
NEW YORK, April 27.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's election as president of Germany "will not adversely affect economic conditions in the United States, in Germany, or in any other country," Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, declared today.

NEW YORK, April 27.—If the outside world will have faith in Germany and continue the present policy of Germany, the present policy of Germany will discharge all her obligations, irrespective of who is president of the republic, it was declared here this afternoon by Baron Ago von Maltzan, the German ambassador.

Speaking within twenty-four hours after the election of von Hindenburg to the presidency and addressing a powerful group of American financiers, Baron von Maltzan assured them that the policy of Germany toward her international obligations had not been changed by the governmental overturn in Berlin. He spoke at a luncheon at the Bankers' club and among his audience were most of the big figures in American finance.

While he did not mention by name either von Hindenburg, the Dawes plan or the Sunday election, the import of the ambassador's remarks was plain to his audience.

German Government Bonds Hit New Low Price Record

NEW YORK, April 27.—German government 7 per cent bonds hit off 90 points today, establishing a record low price of 81 1/2. This was one of the reactions in the stock market to the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as president of Germany.

These bonds were floated in the country following Germany's acceptance of the Dawes plan. French francs dropped 3 1/2 points to 5.17 cents.

German bonds rallied in the late day, however, coming back up to 93 in final trading. This figure was fractionally lower than closing prices Saturday.

Some New York Papers See Disaster For Germany

NEW YORK, April 27.—New York newspapers for the most part attributed the election of von Hindenburg as president of Germany to sentiment and predicted its disastrous reaction to the country.

New York Times: "Germany has chosen to invite unsettlement at home and distrust abroad. The German people will have to begin again their struggle to convince the world that they can be trusted in their premises and purposes."

New York Herald-Tribune: "Germany turns again toward defiance, obstruction and isolation. That shift will react most of all to the injury of the Germans themselves."

Porto Rico Next Goal For Navy's Dirigible

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Sailing orders for the Los Angeles to operate at the captain's discretion were issued today by the navy department on the eve of the big airship's flight to Porto Rico. The only restriction was that the Los Angeles cannot fly over foreign territory.

This action was taken on receipt of a request from Captain Steele, her commanding officer, for permission to remain for several days in Porto Rican waters and make flights over the Virgin Islands and elsewhere. It is expected that she will start early tomorrow from Lakehurst for Porto Rico.

SOLOIN'S TRIAL SET

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The trial of Representative John W. Langley, jointly indicted here last March with five other men, on charges of being involved in an alleged liquor withdrawal conspiracy, was today set for May 25, before Chief Justice McCoy in criminal court. Langley was convicted and sentenced on a similar charge in Kentucky just preceding his indictment here.

What Will He Do Now?

Here are two views of GENERAL VON HINDENBURG, Germany's war lord, who was yesterday elected to the presidency of the German republic. The whole world awaits the new leader's program. What will he attempt to do with the Dawes plan? What will be his attitude to France? Will it be peace or war?

Britain Shocked, Baffled By Election of War Lord

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.

LONDON, April 27.—European politics have been thrown into greatest confusion by the election of General Paul von Hindenburg as president of the German republic, diplomatic circles agree today.

Great Britain was shocked and baffled by the Hindenburg triumph. In some quarters concern was felt for the Dawes plan, through which the allies are collecting from Germany reparations for the great war.

It would be easy, political observers emphasized, for Germany to sabotage the Dawes plan through one political plot or another. The best plan would be for Germany to hold that the French demands were not possible of fulfillment.

The British foreign office comment on the Hindenburg election was:

"The closeness of the vote in Germany shows the country is fairly evenly divided. It is unlikely Hindenburg will attempt any steps of a radical nature."

"It is the view of British experts that the same sentiments which elected President Coolidge and Baldwin (premier of England) also elected Hindenburg."

"The foreign office does not believe the Dawes plan or the security pact will be affected."

France Says Hindenburg Still War Prisoner No. 237

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service.

PARIS, April 27.—So far as France is concerned, the former Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg is still "war prisoner No. 237," the French foreign office pointed out today in commenting on von Hindenburg's victory in the German presidential election.

The foreign office said it did not intend to take any action whatsoever, but that under the Versailles treaty von Hindenburg still must remain as listed there.

The foreign office considers Hindenburg's election "reveals the real spirit of Germany and facilitates France's task" and that there are eleven war criminal charges against Hindenburg, the treaty.

The election, the foreign office asserted, also will greatly aid the ambassadors' council in reaching a decision this week. The council has before it the report of the military control commission which is said to show that Germany has not returned to a full peace basis.

There are eleven war criminal charges against Hindenburg, the treaty.

WORLD AWAITS NEW CHIEF'S POLICY ON ECONOMIC PROGRAM

Belief Reichstag Will Not Permit Any Changes In Foreign Relations

BULLETIN
SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 27.—"I think France has driven Germany into this," said David Lloyd George, formerly premier of England when he arrived here today from a vacation at Madeira. "I do not think Hindenburg will do anything rash. On the whole he is a steady old man. His election is an indication of the renewed spirit which has risen in Germany as a result of the Poincare or nationalist policy."

By W. S. WEYER
For International News Service.

BERLIN, April 27.—Swept into the presidency of the German republic with a plurality of almost a million votes and to the surprise and bewilderment of the whole world, former Field Marshal von Hindenburg will concentrate his efforts to unifying the conflicting forces of the fatherland, rather than attempt to lead it back to a monarchy.

This was the declaration today of his supporters, following Hindenburg's great victory yesterday.

The official vote was: Hindenburg 14,630,399, Marx 13,752,214, Thaelmann 1,031,593, others 21,910.

Hindenburg's supporters said it is unlikely Communism will be revived, for Hindenburg promised workers a new deal and more equal distribution of burdens.

The economic situation in Germany makes it imperative that Hindenburg continue the cordial relations between Germany and the United States, they pointed out.

"This same economic situation will prevent Hindenburg's making a 'scrap of paper' out of the Dawes plan and the Versailles treaty, no matter how much some of his supporters would like to destroy them."

It is expected in some quarters that he will begin immediately, through diplomatic negotiations, to reduce what he believes are undue burdens imposed by the Dawes plan.

It was said that if the allies do not evacuate the Ruhr district that Hindenburg's policy would not be one of tacit submission. The security pact more than likely would be quickly dropped.

The general foreign policy, it was said, will not be changed in the immediate future.

There was a well founded belief that the Reichstag will not allow the new president to alienate the world's sympathies, so laboriously gained.

Any attempt to evade payments under the Dawes plan would bring on a new currency inflation and injure Germany's credit abroad.

Victory for Monarchy Hindenburg's election was, in the opinion of all political observers, a victory for the monarchy, although they emphasized that the possibility of Germany returning the former Kaiser Wilhelm to power was remote.

The big vote polled by the Communist candidate, Ernst Thaelmann, once a resident of the United States, was a surprise. It was the contention of defense of the supporters of Dr. Carl Marx, the defeated Republican candidate, that the Communist vote was what brought about the victory of Hindenburg. The Marx forces had believed the Communist vote would go to Marx and if it had the 900,000 plurality of Hindenburg would have been cut down to a point where Marx would have been the victor.

Now that Hindenburg, an avowed militarist, the Marx forces declare, is elected to the presidency, Germany has turned its attention to the one great question which is in the minds of everybody: "What will France do?"

The Marx followers made no attempt to change the result.

PASTOR TELLS OF BIRTH OF CHURCH

Newly-Installed Minister At Grand View Gives Sunday Sermon

The first sermon of Rev. George W. Thomas, after being installed pastor of Grand View Community church was from Acts 2:4: "And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak with other tongues as the spirit gave them utterance." He said:

"It seems this morning as if we were beginning all over again after the completion of our formal relationship as pastor and people. The church is now completely a church with all officers duly installed and at work, and the pastor formally a pastor by the authority of Presbytery and, we trust, by the will of God.

"Some of you will remember that I began my messages here with a study of the growth of the church in the Book of Acts. When we had completed that, we organized our church. Then we have tarried at Jerusalem studying together Sunday after Sunday the great events and teachings in the life of our Lord in the last three months of His earthly life. We have followed Him all the way to the Cross, day by day, and on through the Resurrection and Ascension.

Beginning of Church. "Now we begin again the story of that dynamic beginning of the church in the Book of Acts when the Lord, ascended and regnant, the tarrying fulfilled; the Holy Spirit fell on all of them at the beginning, as Peter afterward described the earth shaking events of Pentecost. There had been most significant and entirely necessary preliminary 'beginnings'; but this was the great beginning, and from it the program and purpose of Christ for His church unfolds and develops from day to day and age to age.

"The actual calendar dates of Ascension and Pentecost are yet many weeks away, but now in the full sweep of the mighty record, let us not pause to lose headway. Christ has an unfolding purpose and a program for Grand View that must not lose a day. We stand at a greater beginning than we have ever known, profoundly grateful for and remembering all previous beginnings. Now let the Holy Spirit fall on all of us together, upon each of us in his own place and as it did upon the assembled disciples at their great beginning.

Significant Happenings. "Certain very significant things we read in that record. First, they were all, those one hundred and twenty with the eleven in the midst in that upper room, they were all tried and proven people. It was by no accident or sentimental fancy that they were there. They had not prayed for ten days and nights to form just a pleasant social club. They were witnesses of Christ, His sufferings, and death after Christ and they shared in the power of His Resurrection. They knew what they were there for, and the Holy Spirit set them on fire because He knew He could trust them with lives of flame.

"Second, they were all of one accord. The record says that repeatedly and it is significant. Let was an accord so mighty as to be remembered and immortalized. With all their heart, mind and soul they were willing one thing. That one thing was what the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit were also willing. That left no human obstacles. There were left none of the people who keep little things from growing great.

"God's Power" "They had the unity through which God's power acts inevitably by His holy laws of Oneness. Nothing could stop them, and nothing did. At one with themselves and with the Triune God, that is indeed 'of one accord.' It is the only accord that counts in the redemption of the world and the building of the Kingdom. Let the church forever remember that that unity was attained and must ever be attained through prayer that would not cease, could not cease, so long as any spiritual obstacle remained in the life of the church or the hearts of the people.

"Third, the Holy Spirit fell on every single one present and made every single one able to magnify God and make His purpose and program visible to the multitudes who came thronging about. In every tongue and people and nation, they made men see God and rejoice at the vision of His doings and purposes glorious. Every one of the disciples was able to make somebody 'glorify God and enjoy Him forever.' That was because the disciples every one understood the program, saw it for himself, was on fire with it. Then the Holy Spirit filled every one and made him able to do exceedingly abundantly.

"So, at our full beginning, let the Holy Spirit fall on every one of us that we today shall be able to make men to glorify God and enjoy Him forever, and so fulfill our destiny in the will of Christ."

Several conversions were recorded Sunday.

REV. CALDERWOOD HEARD IN SERMON

First Congregational Pastor Takes 'Good Old Way' As Sunday Theme

Rev. Charles M. Calderwood, pastor of First Congregational church, took as the theme for his sermon yesterday morning, "The Good Old Way," saying:

"The prophet Jeremiah had some good advice for the people of his day which is also good advice for us. He said, 'Stand ye on the ways and see, and ask for the old paths, where the good way is and walk therein, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.' This sounds like reason. It is not a counsel for reaction but rather for a discriminating conservatism. We are not asked to follow all the old paths but to walk in the good old paths; and the reward will be rest for our souls.

Kingdom of Judah. "This advice was given to people in peril and perplexity. The kingdom of Judah was threatened with destruction which could only be averted by wise and prompt action. The nation was divided as to policies. Some favored alliance with the east, others diplomatic alliance, increase of wealth, simpler manners, luxurious court, purer laws or new gods. Jeremiah taught that the only salvation for the nation lay in putting away idols and a revival of faith in the living and true God. He reminds us that the kingdom of God has been definitely fixed once for all. There are some things that can't be improved. He advises his people to look back and see what these are.

New Trails Blazed. "New trails have been blazed to heights where the vision is splendid. New roads have been built which lead to productive valleys. We are in sympathy with much of this newness. We have not yet explored all of God's creation. There are new and rich revelations for the human soul. The faith was not once for all delivered to the saints. There are new experiences and rich revelations awaiting us. New interpretations of old truths have appeared and many of which are worthy of careful consideration. There are old paths that lead to destruction. These should be abandoned. There are new paths which have not been tried.

"We must not think that because a thing is new that it is good. There are paths of lawlessness, lack of respect for the constitution, immoralities, pleasure seeking, indifference and disobedience to high and holy laws, disregard of others rights, making a convenience of marriage, national selfishness. These paths should not be trodden.

Diverted Paths. "There has been considerable reconnoitering during the ages. Paths have been tried. Some old paths lead back to ignorance, darkness and sin. They do not lead us onward to something better. But there are paths that have been trodden by millions of people. They are old, to be sure, but we know where they lead. There is no better way or it would have been found. Other people have experimented with other ways but have come back to the good old path. The prophet does not counsel us to take any old path but to walk in the good old way. Others have done a work of investigation for us. There is a field where experimentation is no longer necessary. Certain foundations have been laid and will stand forever.

"We can't rewrite the laws of the Eternal. Faith, worship, prayer, service and love are necessary for the human soul. Many have trodden these paths and their testimony is that they are good."

Last-Minute Bills Scored By Governor SACRAMENTO, April 27. Scoring alleged "insecure voting" trading during the closing hours of the state legislature, Governor Richardson declared in a statement today that "hundreds of bills have literally been dumped upon me" and that none of these would receive his signature unless "a preponderance of evidence showed the necessity." There are too many laws on the statute books now, the governor said as he sharpened his veto axe.

Trading was responsible for passage of the bill giving San Francisco control of its harbor, he said, and insecure voting caused enactment of bills re-establishing the Sonoma state home for delinquent women. This bill the governor has already vetoed.

FRUITS OF GOSPEL IS SUNDAY THEME

St. Mark's Pastor Recalls Teachings Of Jesus, Apostle Paul

The congregation yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church heard Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector, preach on "Bringing Forth the Fruits of the Gospel." He said:

"One of the most picturesque figures of speech which we find in the Gospel is that of bringing forth the fruits of the spiritual life. We find both Jesus and Paul using the same thought in perhaps a little different manner. Jesus tells us that by their fruits we shall know them whether they be good or evil. Paul speaks of the fruits of the spirit as those plants which Jesus mentions as the fruit of a good life. We are not to be plants that merely bring forth leaves.

"There is another suggestive thought in this connection and that is that a plant cannot bring forth fruit unless there is light. No plant can grow well in the dark. Therefore we find both Jesus and Paul telling us to have no part with the works of darkness. Jesus said He was the light of the world and that in Him was no darkness.

Works of Evil. "The works of evil are those that come in darkness and Jesus can have no part with those works. Paul reminds his friend at Ephesus that they have come from darkness into light. They must, therefore, walk as children of the light for the fruit of the spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth.

"This takes us back to the fundamental distinction that Jesus continually makes that we must seek for the motives of life. This sounds very modern for it is very closely akin to modern psychology. It is the hidden motives of life that ultimately control our actions. There is no contradiction between Jesus and Paul, for one speaks in terms of good and evil motives while the other in terms of flesh and spirit.

Love Personified. "To Jesus, goodness was the trait of being kind. Not the sickly sweet kind of goodness that is hypocrisy, but the goodness that goes out to everyone who needs help. Jesus is for us love personified. Not only must we have motives of goodness but also the means of carrying them to good effect. A Christian must hunger after righteousness even to the extent of being persecuted. We must cleave to the ideal of right. This is not easy, but Jesus never pointed out to us the easy path. Finally, we must be a servant of truth. This is sincerity and integrity opposed to falsehood. Jesus was no opportunist for His work was to do the will of Him that sent Him.

"The result of His life was that men called Him sinless. The disciples inherited this passion for truth. To obey God, no matter what the cost, is the demand of our life. A Christian can never be all things to all people. He must be just one, and that is a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ."

LUTHERAN PASTOR TALKS AT SERVICE

Dr. Funk Tells Unconscious Spiritual Influence, In Everyday Life

Taking as his text, John 3:8, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth,"

Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor of First Lutheran church, preached yesterday on "The Unconscious Influence of Our Lives," saying: "Nobody knows what takes place when you drop a lump of sugar into a cup of tea or coffee. By that I mean to say that the wise men do not know whether the change that has taken place is a mechanical or chemical one. But we are sure of one thing, and that is that by dropping the lump of sugar into your tea it has been made sweeter; and for most of us this practical demonstration is entirely sufficient.

"If two persons are engaged in either work or play, side by side, the tendency is for them to become more and more alike; yet neither of them may be conscious of the change that is taking place. The stronger one of the two will gradually win the other to his way of thinking and acting.

Spiritual Forces. "Now when we consider the mystery of spiritual forces let us be just as reasonable as we are at the dinner table. And here let me suggest that one of the spiritual forces that we do not prize as highly as we ought is that of the mystery of prayer. What we are sure of is this: That by living in an atmosphere of prayer we sweeten the hours of the day as it passes by. Now just how this marvelous effect is brought about we cannot tell; but why not be as practical about our religion as we are at the dinner-table?

"Darwin, we are told, was inclined to be skeptical; but after taking a trip through the British provinces he returned and gave to missions. He had noted that England's investment in the establishment of missions had brought to the state its largest returns. In other words, the scientist had observed that wonderful progress had been made in the world and that the Christian religion had been responsible for most of it."

APOSTLE'S LOVE FOR CHRIST TOLD

Rev. Kringle Tells Hearers Of Peter's Faith In Son of God

"Peter's Love for Christ" (John 21:15-17) was the sermon theme taken yesterday morning of Rev. Henry O. Kringle, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, who said:

"The last chapter of the gospel of St. John takes us back to some of the scenes and circumstances of Christ after His resurrection. The immediate text portrays to us how seven men came slowly and thoughtfully down to the narrow beach, entered a boat and pushed out from the land. They were clad in the coarse garb of Galilean fishermen; their faces bronzed by exposure to the wind and the sun; their hands calloused from dragging the dripping net and pulling the laboring oar.

"But they were men destined to hold the highest mark among the great teachers of mankind. Foremost among them was Simon Peter, fiery soul, as ready to smite with the sword as to weep in sorrow at a look from his Lord. After him followed John, the loving and gentle, who leaned on his Master's bosom at the Passover.

"Then came Thomas, the slow and distrustful, so honest in his doubts and so yielding in his confession. Then James, who was the first to seal his faith with the blood of martyrdom. Lastly, Nathaniel came, the upright and guileless, while the names of two were withheld. After many hours of fruitless toil on the waters of the Galilean sea, they were just about to give up further attempt, when a once familiar form is seen standing upon the shore, and they hear a voice telling them to cast the net on the right side of the ship. They heed the direction and success follows. John 21:15-17.

Pathetic Incidents. "It is here that our text sets in one of the most pathetic incidents of sacred story. To understand it properly, we go back in spirit to that scene in the high priest's palace when Peter, the bold and courageous, whose impulsiveness had caused him to promise great things, had shamefully and cowardly denied Christ in the hour of distress. Thrice he had averred that he knew not the man of whom they spoke, and aggravated his offense by denunciations and an oath. It was a grievous, a most terrible fall for the apostle, one that virtually excluded him from the circle of his fellow disciples and from his holy office and, while it is true that he had wept in sorrowful repentance, yet the occurrence was such to demand a personal heart to heart interview and setting aright.

"This interview took place on the shores of the sea of Galilee, after the miraculous draught of fish. When they had finished their meal, Jesus said to Peter:

Peter's Reply. "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me?" and what does he reply? Sad, almost unto death, he would prefer to turn aside and give vent to his feelings in silent tears. But speak he must, and he responds with great tact and deep emotion:

"Yea, Lord thou knowest that I love thee" and we believe that it was so. On the day of pentecost, when boldly confessing his Master in the face of thousands, until the day, when, pinned to the cross in Rome, he at last made good his promise, "Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee" in all this we have the evidence of that love thrice avowed.

"And, friends, has that question no concern and no application whatever for us? If the Lord were to appear personally in our midst this morning and question you by name and ask you the same question, could you answer as he promptly and heartily as Peter art Christ, son of the living God.

JAMES WYVELL PASSES AWAY AT HOME

Pioneer Resident, Prominent In Masonic Work, Is Called By Death

James Wyvell, 61, a resident of Glendale for the past eighteen years and prominent during nearly all that time in Masonic activities here, died at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, April 26, 1925, after having been stricken Saturday morning with a sudden illness. Wyvell had been ailing for several months, but his condition was not considered serious.

Mr. Wyvell was one of the most valued members of Masonic orders in Glendale, and was a close personal friend to every person in any way allied with Masonry. A past patron of Glen Eyrie No. 237, Order of the Eastern Star, he was instrumental in its development to a present stage where it is one of the most active women's fraternal organizations in Southern California.

The funeral will be held from the chapel of the Jewel City Undertaking Co., 137 North Orange street, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of Glendale Commandery, No. 56.

SAVING OF FORESTS URGED BY PRESIDENT

Glendalians to Help In Observation Of Week Designated to Explain Need of Renewing Vast Areas

The saving of America's greatest asset—the trees—will be stressed throughout the nation this week, which has been set aside by President Coolidge and governors of the various states as American Forest week.

In issuing his proclamation for American Forest week, from April 27 to May 3, inclusive, President Coolidge called attention to the danger that comes from neglect of forests. He urges persons throughout the United States to unite in the common task of forest conservation and renewal. In his proclamation, the president says:

"We have passed the pioneer stage and are no longer excusable for continuing this unwise dissipation of a great resource. To the nation it means the lack of an elemental necessity and the waste of keeping idle or only partly productive nearly one-fourth of our soil. To our forest-using industries it means unstable investments, the depletion of forest capital, the disbanding of established enterprises and the decline of one of our most important industrial groups."

Must Renew Forests
"Our forests ought to be put to work and kept at work. I do not minimize the obstacles that have to be met, nor the difficulty of changing old ideas and practices. We must all put our hands to this common task. It is not enough that the federal, state and local governments take the land. There must be a change in our national attitude. Our industries, our land owners, our farmers, all our citizens, must learn to treat our forests as crops, to be used, but also to be renewed. We must learn to tend our woodlands carefully as we tend our farms."

As evidence of the vast amount of interest that is being shown in Glendale in the American Forest week, a series of advertisements, paid for by members of various civic organizations of the city, will appear in The Glendale Evening News, starting tomorrow and running for five days. The purpose of American Forest Week, means of saving trees and the

CLEANER WAR VALLEY PLANS SPREADS TO GLENDALE

Palace Dye Works Warned As Next Target For Bomb, Police Told

The plant of the Palace Dry Cleaners, 209 North Glendale avenue, is slated as the next target in the Southern California's cleaners' and dyers' war, according to a warning received through police channels today. As a result, a double guard has been placed about the plant and Glendale police are being held in readiness to quell any disturbance and to prevent possible repetition of dynamite outrages such as those which Wednesday and Saturday nights damaged property and menaced life in plants in Pasadena and Santa Monica.

While the Plant Owners' Association of Cleaners and Dyers disclaim any responsibility or sympathy with the recent explosions, the police of Los Angeles, Pasadena, Santa Monica and Glendale are continuing an investigation into measures said to have been adopted by the association to force independent operators into the association and to keep them there.

A. D. Orr, manager of the Palace Dye Works, was notified of the expected attack on his place of business through C. M. Wright, of the Clean-Rite Dye Works, 126 West Wilson street, Glendale, who was warned by investigators when they could not get in touch with Orr.

Following the threatened dynamiting of the local plant, police say that the next in line for an attack is the Quality Dry Cleaners in Los Angeles.

VALLEY PLANS PREVENTION OF FLOODS

Passage of Bill Allocating $4,000,000 To Tujunga Region Paves Way

Civic organizations of the San Fernando valley are today preparing extensive development programs as a result of the passage of the state Senate of Assembly bill No. 1085, fostered by the Greater San Fernando Valley association and introduced by Assemblyman Frank C. Weller of Glendale.

The bill is an addendum to the flood control act which permits the county Board of Supervisors to provide additional funds for flood control before the fund of a prevailing issue has been expended in construction. The act was made necessary by the dangers of the flood waters of the Big Tujunga, where it is planned to construct a large flood control and conservation dam.

Valley's Share
Though practically $4,000,000 was allocated to the construction of dams in the Big Tujunga and Pacoima canyons from the recent $25,000,000 bond issue, it was revealed by County Flood Control Engineer J. W. Reagan that the sum would not be adequate to complete the Pacoima dam and that only the foundation for the Big Tujunga could be constructed.

The prevailing flood control act would have delayed completion of either project eight years. A. Z. Taft, president of the Greater San Fernando Valley association, stated. It would also have prevented completion of extensive major highway development affecting the entire San Fernando valley.

Numerous washes in the valley, and the various channels of the Los Angeles river caused city engineers to refuse to consider bridge construction or the building of additional east and west arteries until the river channel had been permanently defined.

Danger of Floods
The danger of floods originating in the Big Tujunga is responsible, Taft stated, for numerous other delays in development, all of which can be consummated within the next few years as a result of the legislative action.

Proceedings will be instituted immediately by the Greater San Fernando Valley association to complete surveys and lay plans for the installation of a valley-wide sewer system. Rapid transit, parks and playgrounds, and bridge construction are included in the year's development program of the association.

During the week of May 25 more than 550 men and women property owners of the valley will participate in a drive to raise $150,000 to advertise the valley. The money will be raised by appropriations from property owners based upon the assessed valuation of their holdings.

BOLSHEVIST POISON

The insidious and widespread growth and effects of Bolshevism are apparent in the recent Communist outrages in Bulgaria, and in the conviction and sentence of the American soldier who attempted to start a revolt in the American army in Hawaii.

There are some people who are sincere in advocating Communism. They believe it to be the remedy for all the ills and evils of government. But in this country a good many who favor Bolshevism do so because they think it "advanced," because the solid common sense of the masses of the people is against it. Therefore to be "different," to demonstrate their intellectual superiority these people meet to smoke cigarettes and drink tea or bootleg gin and discuss Bolshevism. As a usual thing they do no harm, for their activity is confined to their tongues and within their own groups. But once in a while they get hold of a man like Private Crouch who believes in putting his principles into practice. Then they are not so harmless. This poor American soldier, now a convict, is far above those who poisoned his mind with Bolshevist propaganda, for he had the courage of his convictions. He dared his life and honor for a cause which he must have believed to be good. He had in him the makings of greatness. It is too bad his courage and idealism could not have been directed in a worthy cause. He will have ample time during his forty years in prison to come to his senses. Meanwhile the "parlor pinks" who poisoned his mind will be at large seeking new converts and discussing the overthrow of the government that shelters and protects them. They will continue playing safe by spreading their hideous doctrine and letting some one else take the risk.

It is not possible or desirous to suppress free discussion in this country. But the government should put a severe check upon those who come to this country for the purpose of spreading Bolshevist poison.

THANKLESS JOB

If you have an enemy, hope that he will be elected to the state Legislature. In this thankless position he will get everything that you believe is coming to him. General satisfaction was expressed at the adjournment of the California Legislature and the usual sarcasm at the expense of the lawmakers and their work indulged in. And the California Legislature is not peculiar in this way. The same story comes from every other state in the union. The Pittsburgh Post announces: "Extravagance features Assembly session just closed. Little constructive legislation enacted. The entire session marked by dealing, double dealing and quarrels that left no person with anything to crow about." The Cleveland Plaindealer complains that the Ohio legislature passed, over the governor's veto, a bill providing for a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline used for motor vehicle fuel. The Detroit Free Press mourns because the obstructionists' bloc in the Michigan legislature was able to defeat legislative reapportionment.

And so it goes. Legislators and their problems seem to be very much alike the country over. The minority member who favors honest procedure and constructive legislation may vote right, but he has only one vote, and he gets cussed with the majority.

NEW POSTAL RATES

The new schedule of postal rates necessitated by the raise in salaries of postal employees is now in effect. The schedule is tentative, it is understood, for very shortly a special congressional commission is to tour the country to find out how the new rates are working. So, every customer of Uncle Sam should watch the new system as it applies to his own case, and report.

Business houses which use the postal service extensively are finding it necessary, in many cases, to reorganize their mailing departments, newspaper publishers are revising their subscription rates, and vacationists are cutting down on the output of picture post cards, since these each require a two-cent stamp under the new schedule.

A new feature in the parcel post service should be welcomed, especially by those who ship perishable products. Parcels marked "Special Handling" at an extra charge of 25 cents, in addition to the ordinary zone rate and two cents service fee, may from now on be sent on their way with the rapidity of first-class letter mail.

It will be interesting, although somewhat expensive to some, to see how the new schedule works out.

BOGUS ANTIQUES

A Columbia University professor has devised a chemical process which restores old bronzes to their pristine condition. It does not destroy the results of oxidation, for that would be fatal to the bronze, but it reverses the action of oxygen on bronze. By this method it is possible to determine the authenticity of bronze, and already some bogus figures have been discovered in museums. Heretofore it has been possible to make bogus bronze antiques that have deceived experts, but this will be possible no longer.

The making and selling of fake antiques and works of art is a large and profitable industry, demanding talent, sagacity and acumen that might well be put to better purpose. But gradually these fakirs are being eliminated, the bogus bronze makers being the latest to go.

The man who fakes liquor of ancient vintage and sells it is having his day now, but he will have to go, too. He differs from the vendors of other bogus antiques in that it is possible to determine the authenticity of his product by drinking it. If it kills you instantly it is not the real thing, don't buy it.

Hemet and San Jacinto are capitalizing the romance of early California days by the third annual presentation of the Ramona pageant in a natural amphitheatre, the Ramona bowl. Palm Springs has been successful in the annual presentation of a desert play for several years. And San Gabriel has become famous because of the Mission Play which is presented there. All of which is proof that Glendale may achieve fame in the historical pageant being planned for the coming fall.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST!

Business Women's Coming of Age

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The business woman is coming of age. She is finding means of asserting herself and of living her life.

There is a certain class of women who by nature are not dependent on men. They are created with sufficient vitality, or circumstances have so arranged it, that they stand on their own feet.

While in every great city much has been done in a charitable way for working girls of small salary, nothing has been done for business women.

In the first place it is hard to help them. They are not objects of charity. They are accustomed to looking out for themselves.

The result is that the lives they lead are often lonely and imperfect.

There is no reason why they should not have the same companionship and the advantages of fellowship which men have in their clubs.

A number of these women, the better class of earners in New York, have gathered together and formed a clubhouse association.

They intend to build a substantial clubhouse structure on Twenty-third street and to use it both for lodging their members and for entertaining their friends. In the reception room and other public rooms of the house men will be welcome. The women can entertain their men friends there.

There will be no rules or restrictions because the members will not need them. There will be no representatives of the fluffy ruffles class present. They will not want to come and they will not be wanted if they do come.

Men make all sorts of provisions for dependent women. Wives, working girls and mistresses are looked out for. They do not make any provision for the woman who takes care of herself and is self-respecting and independent.

In one sense every man's hand, and especially every woman's, is against this class. The ordinary woman resents an efficient, self-supporting female. She is a menace to her own dependent condition.

The ordinary woman expresses herself through a man, and when she finds a woman expressing herself through her own personality, it offends her.

The ordinary man also regards a woman as his dependent. She is to be looked after and protected. When he finds one that is able to take care of herself and who meets him on equal grounds in business relations, he is a trifle nonplussed. He does not know how to take her.

Circumstances, therefore, have compelled the business women to get together. Led by such competent workers as Anne Morgan and Miss Robinson Smith, they have formed an organization consisting of some five thousand members.

They will put up a clubhouse which will be maintained by the receipts from its residents.

The idea is not a charitable nor an uplift movement, but is simply an expression of the impulse of money-earning and self-respecting women to get together and realize their own personalities.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

It has been observed that in youth it is the outward aspect of things that most engages us; while in age, thought or reflection is the predominating quality of the mind.

Hence, youth is the time for poetry, and poetry and age is the more inclined to philosophy.

In practical affairs it is the same: A man shapes his resolutions in youth more by the impression that the outward world makes upon him; whereas, when he is old, it is thought that determines his actions.

This is partly to be explained by the fact that it is only when a man is old that the results of outward observation are present in sufficient numbers to allow of their being classified according to the ideas they represent—a process which in its turn causes those ideas to be more fully understood in all their bearings, and the exact amount of trust to be placed in them.

In youth, the impressions that things make, that is, the outward aspects of life, are so overpoweringly strong, especially in the case of people of lively and imaginative disposition, that they view the world like a picture, and their chief concern is the figure they cut in it, the appearance they present; but they are unaware of the extent to which this is the case.

Schopenhauer makes the statement that there can be no doubt that the intellectual powers are most capable of enduring great and sustained efforts in youth, up to the age of thirty-five, from which period their strength begins to decline, though very gradually.

Still, the latter years of life, and even old age itself, are not without their intellectual compensation.

"It is only then that a man can be said to be really rich in experience or in learning; he has then had time and opportunity enough to enable him to see and think over life from all its sides; he has been able to compare one thing with another, and to discover the points of contact and connecting links, so that only then are the true relations of things rightly understood."

Who's Who

President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen since 1909, William G. Lee will be a candidate for re-election in the convention of the brotherhood which starts in Cleveland, O., May 12, he has announced.

Next August, if he is re-elected, Lee will have covered 30 years of service as a salaried official of the trainmen's organization.

Though he is 65, and his life as head of the largest and sometimes the most turbulent of the railroad brotherhoods has been anything but peaceful, he is not yet ready to retire.

The convention will be the first the big union has held in Cleveland and will bring for its three or four weeks' deliberation the representatives of 180,000 brakemen, conductors and switchmen.

Lee became the first vice-president of the brotherhood in 1895 it had only 17,000 members and a debt of $130,000. The debt was the result of the disastrous American Railway Union strike in 1894 led by Eugene V. Debs. Lee, who was a freight conductor running out of Kansas City on the Union Pacific, did not participate in that strike, but the Kansas City switchmen did.

When Lee became head of the brotherhood in 1909 its membership had built up to 100,700 and it had a treasury of $1,600,000. Today, with 180,000 members, its insurance, general, protective and tuberculosis funds amount to $9,200,000, most of it invested in bonds. It also has an eight-story building in Cleveland.

Lee got into railroad via the Morse code, which he learned in Bowen, Ill., 50 years ago. His father sent him to a ranch on the Kansas frontier and after a year there he got a job braking on the Santa Fe road, running out of Emporia, Kansas.

His knowledge of telegraphy brought him quick promotion to conductor and by 1880 he was taking freight trains over the mountain division between La Junta, Colo., and Las Vegas, N. M.

At that time settlements were so far apart that train crews got many of their orders direct from the wire by connecting up key and sander at poles every five miles or so.

Later Lee was with the Wabash and the Missouri Pacific and finally the Union Pacific.

In 1904 Lee took personal direction for the brotherhood of the first general wage movement for the New York harbor district.

In 1906 he was in charge of the Pittsburgh yard movement and participated in the first collective western wage movement for train and yard men.

After he succeeded "Pat" Morrissey as president in 1909 he led the trainmen's movement for the ten-hour day jointly with the conductors, and in 1916, joined with the other brotherhood chiefs in the concerted eight-hour move-

PLAYERS TO OPEN NEW COMEDY HIT

"The Wonderful Thing" Gets First Glendale Showing Playhouse Tonight

The Dobinson Players, who open tonight in "The Wonderful Thing," are enjoying their work in this sprightly vehicle. There is a great deal of diversity in every role. The play is comedy and drama combined, which comes near to being the ideal form of American theatrical entertainment, to judge by the response which such plays always receive. There are some tense scenes described, as when one's eyes smart at the sorrow of the little French bride when she discovers that the man she marries is apparently unworthy, an ignoble fortune-hunter instead of the knight of her dreams.

But there is a good deal of laughter, too, and the affair finally ends with the bride's faith restored and the husband much more of a man than he appears to be in the first instance. Just how this happy result is achieved must remain a secret, because it would take the bloom from the surprise which the author has carefully worked out.

To invade L. A. The Glendale Playhouse will be a busy place all this week. Besides the regular evening performance and the Saturday matinee, there will be daily rehearsals lasting from mid-morning until well into the afternoon.

The Dobinson Players are getting ready for their invasion of Los Angeles. They open at the Philharmonic Auditorium in the city on Monday evening, May 11th, with the revival of "Manna" which will be much more elaborate and pretentious than the very good and solid presentation given here for three weeks.

"I have heard a great deal from our people about 'Manna,'" said Manager George Smith of the Auditorium, "and I am glad of the opportunity to put it on. We have a clientele of several thousand people who come regularly to our attractions, and from the letters I am receiving, most of them have heard about 'Manna' and want to see it, or else have seen it and want to see it again. I think we will do a good business with it."

"Manna" will close in Los Angeles Saturday night, May 23, and the Dobinson Players expect to be back home in the Glendale Playhouse, Monday night, May 25, with a new comedy.

LEATRICE JOY ON GATEWAY SCREEN

"Dressmaker Of Paris" New Photoplay Showing At Popular Playhouse

Leatrice Joy, one of the most popular members of the film colony at Beverly Hills, has returned to the screen after a short absence in what is probably the finest vehicle she has ever been given, "The Dressmaker of Paris," showing today, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Gateway Theatre.

This photoplay is described as one of great gorgeousness, carnival, romance and exquisitely-gowned feminine beauty. Appearing with Miss Joy are Ernest Torrence, Alan Forrest and Mildred Harris.

Comedy is added to the story "The Dressmaker of Paris" carries a warm romance. Its big scenes run the whole gamut of human emotion. There is joy, pathos, passion, the ardor of love and the seamy scars of hate. Leatrice Joy, the "dressmaker," in the midst of luxury, has little of real joy from life, until the great love brings her finally, contentment.

Besides the feature production, a side-splitting comedy and news reel also are scheduled to be shown at the Gateway during the next three days.

Foresters Make Merry At Picnic In Sunland

Gould H. Warren, chief ranger of Glendale Forest, announced today that fifty lodge members attended the picnic yesterday at Monte Vista park, Sunland. A baseball game was a feature. Supper was served. There were visitors from Los Angeles and Santa Paula. The next meeting of Glendale lodge will be Friday night in the Odd Fellows' hall, West Broadway. A pot luck dinner will be served at 7 o'clock, followed by a business session and dancing.

Bird Fanciers Spend Week-End At Camp

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cookman of 336 Pioneer drive spent the week-end at Switzer's camp, as members of a party of 140 from the Los Angeles Nature Study club, of which Mr. Cookman is president. Mr. Cookman and Dr. Loye Miller of the University of California, southern branch, spoke on birds.

Approximately 100,000,000 automobile trailers are used in the United States.

Capable Cast

Mabel Ballin and Forrest Stanley exhibit art in Kyne story, "Beauty and the Bad Man," now at GLENDALE THEATRE.

To appreciate all the fine things about "Beauty and the Bad Man," now the attraction at the Glendale theatre, one must see the picture for himself. There is nothing hackneyed and stale about this delightful story, which has been adapted to the screen by E. Richard Shayer from Peter B. Kyne's tale.

Mabel Ballin and Forrest Stanley, heading an unusually capable cast, carry the story along a blue cloud, so to speak. The tale of a young girl who surmounted obstacles which cluttered the path to a successful career is not only written with charm and grace, but is interpreted by the cast with amazing intelligence and laudable appreciation.

The locale of the story is California in the later gold-rush days, a locale which apparently gave the art director an enviable amount of latitude in both indoor and outdoor sets. He has caught some exteriors that are as rarely beautiful as anything ever seen on the screen.

Roe Reaves, "the kid glove kilder," appearing on the stage in person the last times tomorrow night, is a "nut comedian." For the past three seasons he has been featured with such productions as the Musco Box Revue, the Ziegfeld Follies, "Kid Boots" and "Big Boy."

Another feature that is attracting much interest among patrons of the Glendale theatre is the showing of the Photograph.

FEATURE FILM AT COSMO THEATRE

Madge Bellamy Is Star In "Fool And His Money" At New Playhouse

Very few people realize that the proper word in the proper place can make or unmake a good motion picture. There is much due to the title writer for he has to place conversation that does just more than put words in the mouth of the speaker. Only too often there are things which have to be told in titles in order to establish the various characters when a story opens. This is a matter calling for great skill for the finest action can be ruined by dull, dreary titles which are far too long and involved to make any sense in the short glance in which the audience has to read them.

Such a man is Walter Anthony. His latest work is in the Columbia picture, "A Fool and His Money," now playing at the Cosmo theatre, which features Madge Bellamy and William Haines. He is the man who had to hook up the book as written by George Barr McCutcheon with the film as presented. Mr. Anthony is a man of wide experience, having written the titles for many other large productions. Among them were "The Sea Hawk," "The Mark of Zorro," "The Fire Patrol" and many others.

Hunting Dog's Death Causes Man's Suicide

LAKESIDE, Cal., April 27.—Grief over the death of his acre-decade-old dog, "Boodle," drove Paul E. Schultz, 45, to suicide. The bachelor rancher's body was found today with a rifle bullet through the heart, and a note stating life was not worth while without the companionship of his dog.

Last Christmas morning "Boodle" crawled home riddled with shotgun wounds and died in his master's arms. Schultz vowed vengeance and ever since packed a revolver, looking for the slayer. Sympathetic friends presented him with another dog, but the lone rancher would not be comforted.

"Boodle" was 5 years old and noted through the countryside as a great hunter. Schultz raised and trained the dog to retrieve, trail, tree and to perform innumerable tricks. The dog was considered a master hunter.

SCHUMANN-HEINK TO MAKE 'DEBUT'

Golden Anniversary of Noted Opera Star Set For Metropolitan

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
NEW YORK, April 27.—Schumann-Heink is going to celebrate her golden anniversary in grand opera at the Metropolitan. The dream of her life is coming true. Schumann-Heink, perhaps the best known of the operatic singers because of her long career in this country and her many travels which have taken her even into the smaller towns.

Schumann-Heink, the many times grandmother, coming back to the Metropolitan, coming back to sing the Wagnerian roles with that magnificent deep-chested contralto which time cannot wither nor custom stale. Already the opera patrons of the grand tier and the music lovers of the gallery are preparing for the big welcome which is to come in the fall. The announcement of the signing of a contract with Mme. Schumann-Heink has given New York the biggest operatic thrill of a decade.

Feat Unprecedented
Years ago it was thought Schumann-Heink had made her farewell appearance in an operatic role. It was considered natural that she might continue for a long while to sing in concerts.

They are not so exacting to a carefully placed and well-served voice, but to go through a heavy Wagnerian role at 65—the opera has not known such a thing in this country. Lillie Lehmann has sung at 70, but in concert. Anna Bishop, it has been said, appeared in concert when she was 80.

But for the greater part opera stars of the first magnitude have retired comparatively early in life. Calve was one of the oldest of the modern group, but she retired at 47. Gadsby left the Metropolitan at 44; Eames and Sembrich at 42; Tetrazzini at 40. Jean de Reszke left the stage at 53 to become a great teacher.

Scotti Is Marvel
The marvel of the Metropolitan at present is Antonio Scotti, the perpetual beau. Scotti is in his sixtieth year. He has celebrated his silver anniversary with the Metropolitan company. His voice has never seemed better than this season and it looks as if he would go on forever. The great baritone, the greatest Scarpia of all times, acts with the fire and dash of a man of 30. It seems as if Scotti had always been with the Metropolitan. He makes occasional brief concert turns, but the music lovers of the "provinces" have not known him as they have Schumann-Heink.

Austrian By Birth
The daughter of an Austrian army officer and an Italian mother, Mme. Schumann-Heink was being prepared in convent for a social career and position marriage when one of the nuns was struck by the rare quality of her voice. There followed the inevitable visit to a great music teacher and the inevitable first disappointment. The maestro brutally told the girl that her face, figure and voice all pointed in one direction. Her career, he asserted, lay at the sewing machine. Mme. Schumann-Heink has been at the sewing machine many times since then, but she has been there as the most domestic of the successful opera stars. Coming from a land of big families, Mme. Schumann-Heink has done more than her part as an anti-suicide advocate. There were four children by her first marriage, four by her second, none by an unhappy third. There are many grandchildren. More seem to arrive almost every month, but Mme. Schumann-Heink likes to see them all.

Gets Her Chance
After her first rebuff the girl returned to the convent. But the teacher had been more convinced than he wanted the girl to know. He recommended her to the conductor of the Royal Opera at Dresden and there just forty-nine years ago she made her debut in the chorus. Minor roles soon followed and a contract for three years at $900 a year filled her heart with thanksgiving. An early marriage terminated the career for a short time—a few months. Mme. Schumann-Heink was back on the stage and singing the night her first child was born.

Schumann-Heink's debut in this country was in 1898. Since then she has made her home here, has traveled far and wide and has achieved undying fame. Returning to the Wagnerian roles at the Metropolitan she will be at her best.

"I am 65," says Mme. Schumann-Heink, "but that is nothing." Wherein the younger generation gets another blow in the neck.

Merchants Are Holding Up the Heavy End

While there are a few dissatisfied and disgruntled people in every group and organization it is safe to say that the great majority of those who live in Glendale live here because they think it the best city in the world. They are here from choice. Glendale holds out the inducements of an ideal home community.

It follows that if Glendale supplies the conditions and the environment which a man demands for his family he has a certain responsibility in return, for a community is made up of its people and Glendale people are responsible for the home atmosphere which prevails here. No one resident should be held to account for these things more than another. All are equally responsible.

Is it not logical then for the merchants of Glendale to ask for the trade of the home people? They are entitled to support because they are holding up the business end of the community, not a small or unimportant part, by any means, for without their fine business buildings, wideawake business men and her active business interests Glendale would not be an ideal home community. People demand the convenience of stores in the community in which they live, even though they patronize them only in emergencies.

Every Glendale citizen has a responsibility to the community. A few are able to give a portion or all of their time to the advancement of the city's interests. But the great mass of people can only do their share by trading with the home merchants, thus helping to uphold the business end of the community and adding to the city's prestige and wealth by keeping every cent of our money here at home.

LA CRESCENTA

LA CRESCENTA, April 27.—Ten years ago Mrs. G. Hauber gave the club women, then in the valley, a party in celebration of her wedding anniversary. After the affair the guests signed their names on one of the decorative paper napkins used for the occasion. Fifteen names appear on the napkin. Yesterday Mrs. Hauber presented this souvenir of early club days to the club to put into the corner-stone of the new building. Among present members whose names are on the paper are: Mesdames Howard Reynolds and Rose N. Nettleton, G. Bertrand, Mrs. Truck, president, received the paper in the name of the club.

Nimble fingers are flying these days at the Crescenda school in preparation for the great May-day festival which is planned to be made greater than that of last year. There will be the May queen with her attendants who will dance in the costumes of the colonial day. Mother Goose folk will welcome those who come to spend the day at school, stepping from the pages of the old nursery rhyme book to the strains of appropriate music. Races, kite contests, vehicle parade and other events will feature the field day part of the program. Hot dogs, pop, lemonade, candy and ice-cream will tempt the nickels. There will be a bazaar to exhibit the sewing done by the girls in manual training.

An exceptionally large crowd was out last night to witness the P.T.A. "Fathers' Night" program. As it was impossible to get a speaker for last night a program of fun was given instead of the Valley instead of talks on rearing children. Mrs. C. W. Angier, president of the La Crescenda P.T.A., opened the program by introducing Mr. Rodet of Highway Highlands, who gave violin selections, accompanied by Mrs. R. Q. MacDonald at the piano.

Mrs. Sheridan Young of Montrose, sang "Sunrise and You" and "Bowl of Roses." A reading, "The Man in the Shadows," was given by R. W. Childs. Mr. Moore of Montrose, contributed his bit to the program.

The Little Red Schoolhouse proved most popular, with Mrs. R. Q. MacDonald as the principal and Dr. Annis as the trustee who questioned the children. Others taking part were: Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. G. Lefevre, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rodet, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tate, Mr. and Mrs. F. Berry, Mrs. G. Frasher, Mr. and Mrs. G. Yersen, and Mrs. E. Dunlap.

Following the program, which was concluded by the audience joining the pupils in singing "America," refreshments were served by Mesdames Dolly Craig, chairman of the committee, S. B. Young, F. Van Loman and G. MacConnell.

La Crescenda people wishing to make reservations for the bridge-mah jongg tea to be given Friday May 1 at the Tabs tea room, are requested to place their orders with Mrs. E. N. Nettleton, Mrs. Tamas A. Bennet, owner of the tea room, will be hostess and will give instruction in the games played. A percentage of the proceeds from these teas, given from time to time, will be turned over to the club building fund.

An executive board meeting of the P.T.A. at the weekly reading circle will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Eloise Farmer. All officers are requested to be present. Mrs. Farmer has presented the book, "The Child, His Nature and His Needs," to the reading circle. This volume will be studied during the season.

Mrs. Mark S. Collins was hostess this week to a number of old friends. Those present were: Mrs. Cree T. Work of Yuba, Mrs. Guy and Mrs. Frank Holmes of Los Angeles; Mrs. C. O. Fish and Mrs. E. Summers of Venice; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, Mr. and Mrs. C. Tillinghast.

Music section of the Woman's club met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. A. Haskins. Rehearsals for music week were held. New members are joining at each meeting. Mrs. R. Q. Macdonald, who has charge of the affair, is preparing an all-American composers' program. Periods covered will be revolutionary days to the present time.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, April 27.—The executive board of the Montrose Parent-Teacher association will meet at the school next Tuesday, April 28. The nominating committee will present for consideration the list of official candidates to serve for the coming year. Mrs. A. E. Caron and Mrs. A. P. MacCarton will give a silver tea Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. MacCarton. Proceeds will go toward work of the Verdugo Hills post Legion auxiliary. An entertaining program has been arranged by the women. All are invited.

Montrose troop of Boy Scouts was instructed in first-aid work last night by Dr. Montague Cleaves, who is devoting much of his time to the furtherance of child welfare. These Boy Scouts, in conjunction with the Crescenda troop, will hold court of honor on Friday, May 8, at the Sparr Heights Community house. Scout Executive Cheesman was present at last night's meeting.

The real estate office of Carter & Griffith has been removed from the northeast corner of Honolulu and Ocean View avenues, where it has stood for the past two years. It has been replaced by an attractive signboard, advertising the Montrose Drug Store. Mr. DeLanger, owner of the lot, says he intends building later.

A meeting of the people with the officials of the telephone company, in regard to new service, will be held on May 1.

Members of the Angeles Forest Protective association will meet at the home of A. M. Vilmar tomorrow night. As plans for the proposed dance will be discussed and business matters taken up, all members are urged to be present.

The first dinner dance to be given by members of the I. O. O. F. will be held at the Fowler auditorium next Tuesday night. Lester E. Thompson, noble grand, announces there are still tickets for sale. A. C. Sears is in charge of the dancing. A good time is promised.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, April 27.—Thursday was past-presidents' day at the Woman's club. The hall was appropriately decorated in club colors, yellow and white. Luncheon was served during the noon hour to fifty members who had gathered to do honor to those who had guided the club during its early years. Past-presidents attending were: Mesdames Dean, Warnick, Barry and Jones. The first president of the club, Mrs. J. H. Frost, was represented by her sister, Miss Cora Lewis.

Mrs. Maud Slusher had charge of the program and read letters from Past-Presidents Frost, Miles and Mendenhall, who were unable to be present. Each of the past-presidents who were at the meeting gave a short talk on her experiences during her administration. Mrs. White gave a report of the results which have been achieved during the last year, testifying to the fact that there has been wonderful cooperation and faithful services rendered by the active members of the club. Mrs. Wheeler gave an entertaining sketch and reading from "Napoleon Jackson, the Gentleman of the Plush Rocker." Mrs. Flora A. White then gave an interesting report of the annual convention of Federation of Women's clubs held at Santa Barbara April 14, 15 and 16, which she and several other members had attended. Other members who attended the convention were: Mrs. Annie Kindler, Mrs. Bertha Morgan, Mrs. Dora Warnick and Mrs. Minnie Pratt.

The next regular meeting of the Woman's club will be held May 14, at which time officers for the coming year will be elected.

The J. O. C. class is an active member of the Community church and has enjoyed many delightful affairs during the past year. Saturday and Sunday, April 26 and 27, the class entertained the J. O. C. class of the First Baptist church of Los Angeles. Saturday afternoon a wicker roast was enjoyed by the young people at Monte Vista park. Sunday was spent in the Big Tujunga canyon, where the two classes held Sunday school, conducted by Miss Brunner, teacher of the Los Angeles class.

Lynch; first vice-president, Mrs. Valentine Gore; second vice-president, Mrs. Canfield; third vice-president, Mrs. Fred Axe; recording secretary, Mrs. Barnaby; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. D. THANKS NEWS FOR LECTURE STORIES

Christian Scientist Church
Board of Directors Tell
Appreciation in Letter

A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News, is in receipt of the following self-explanatory communication from the board of directors of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Glendale:

Dear Sir:—In behalf of the board of directors of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Glendale, I am pleased to again extend to you their hearty appreciation for the magnanimity you have expressed in printing in full the Christian Science lectures which have been given by this church during the past few months.

Your kindness and generosity is a source of frequent commendation, not only by local Christian Scientists, but by our lecturers and friends in this country and abroad, for the Christian Science lecture has for its objective the entire world.

Papers Sent East

Mr. Davis, a member of the board of lecturership of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., who lectured for us several months ago, requested Mrs. Minier, our assistant committee on publication, to send twenty-five or more copies to his home in Chicago for distribution there. This is only one instance where The Glendale Evening News is being circulated throughout the country—many more could be cited.

It was Henry Drummond, who said, "There is no happiness in having but only in giving." Christian Scientists appreciate this statement because they are learning that giving and getting are automatic, and I am sure that you will be compensated and blessed in all that you do.

Assuring you of the co-operation of the board of directors of this church, I remain,

Most cordially yours,
(MRS.) GRACE M. CLEVELAND.

The home of C. D. Kratka, 5252 Eaglelake avenue, was partially destroyed by fire caused by an overheated hot water heater. The damage totaled about $500. Neighbors aided in carrying furniture out of doors to prevent it from being damaged by water.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Montgomery have returned from a honeymoon trip to Mt. Baldy, and have announced they will be "at home" to their friends at 432 Holland street on May 1.

The Eagle Rock Community players have entered the contest in the Glendale district Elsteddoff one-act play division. The contest will be held May 2 in the auditorium of the Glendale Union High school.

PACKERS FAVORED IN COURT RULING

Products Not Derived From Meat Now Permitted To Be Handled

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.
WASHINGTON, April 27.—The suspension by the District of Columbia supreme court of the consent decree affecting the larger packing interests of the country, by which the latter were to have ceased to engage in the manufacture or sale of any material not a derivative of meat, was received with mixed feelings by the parties at issue, according to their representatives here.

The representatives of the southern wholesale groceries association which have been active in the agitation to secure the decree, were keenly disappointed. The representatives of the California Co-operative Canneries, from which the packers had a contract to purchase a certain percentage of output were pleased, feeling their rights and contractual relations had been sustained and protected.

The representatives of Swift, Armour and other packers, felt that although the decision suspended the operation of the decree only so far as the California canners were concerned, it had served to clean their records of implication of wrong doing cast on them by the government and of the implication that the consent decree had been signed as a result of law violation.

Producers' Opinion
Producers of butter, eggs and poultry felt distinctly easier in their minds. For although poultry and dairy products were excepted from the operation of the consent decree, the federal trade commission has submitted a report recommending that the large packers be divorced from ownership or operation of refrigerator cars. Dairy and poultry men have been worried as to who would transport, store or distribute their products if the recommendations were complied with.

There is little reason to doubt the statement of the packers that they are little exercised as to whether they engage in the marketing of canned goods or not. The whole business grew out of the desire to use refrigerator cars to their utmost capacity. Carcasses of beef and mutton in the cars hang from rails along the roof and there is considerable space beneath them. The packers found that the best way to utilize this space was to pack canned goods, dairy products and poultry beneath the meat.

Effect on Fruit
Then, too, the fruit and other products produced return loads for the meat cars, which otherwise would have been returned to the packing establishment empty. When cars were sent into the fruit or vegetable districts or to sea food centers loaded with beef, they were able to pick up grapes or other fruits or sea food, transport them to the canneries and take on loads of finished products which then were combined with beef cargoes shipped from the central distributing points.

The packers had space in their coolers for the raw products and place in their warehouses for the finished goods. These methods of operation became fairly general and enabled some of the packers to sell such canned products at prices which were far from pleasing to some of the large grocers in various sections. Considerable controversy resulted and in 1920 the packers entered an agreement with the government, known as the consent decree, by which they agreed not to manufacture products not derivatives of meat with the exception of dairy products and poultry and some few other food articles.

The California canners, with whom Armour and Company had a contract to take a certain percentage of output, sought to have the consent decree declared void as tending to deprive them of their rights without due process of law. In fact, the consent decree, according to the packers, made certain allegations

WINDOW DISPLAY FOR 'BABY WEEK'

Pendroy's Cooperating With Nation-Wide Movement; Special Features

National "Baby Week," April 27 to May 2, is being featured at the Pendroy store, South Brand boulevard and Harvard street, by a cleverly arranged window display, and special prices in certain lines of merchandise for babies and younger kiddies.

Two long-legged stork figures, standing out vividly against a background of black, preside over the special window. From the bills of the two birds shower pink satin ribbon, holding an infant doll in a blanket hammock. Bassinets, wicker cribs, cunning clothing and other baby things are given prominence in the window, decorated by P. L. Morris, Pendroy decorator.

The welfare of babies and children is being emphasized in American life during this week. This year the American Child Health association, of which Herbert Hoover is president, is actively engaged in the nation-wide movement.

May day is "Child Health day," a feature of "Baby Week." To a large degree the efforts of the American Child Health association are devoted to an observance of May day, so planned that the idea of child welfare may be presented in the most forceful way to those who need it most.

The Pendroy store is cooperating with this movement, inviting mothers of babies to visit the store, enjoy the attractive window and take advantage of the various tempting offerings in lines particularly for babies.

that the packers had violated a law or laws in their operations and that the consent decree was the result of those violations. It was the clearing up of the record in this respect that the packers demanded most.

Nevertheless, the suspension of the decree, insofar as the California people are concerned, probably will result in the entry of California canned goods into southern markets in competition with products canned in that and other sections under conditions which may nullify any advantage which the local products now enjoy.

DAWES TO CARRY FIGHT TO PEOPLE

Vice-President Arranges for Kansas Mass Meeting On Senate Row

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes intends to carry his fight for a change in the Senate rules directly to the people of those states whose representatives in the United States Senate have not yet announced their support of his proposal.

Arrangements are being made, for instance, for mass meetings in Kansas in an effort to influence the people to persuade Senator Charles Curtis, majority leader of the Senate, to agree with Mr. Dawes' viewpoint.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, has announced his support of Mr. Dawes and the vice-president is not content to have one senator from Kansas but wants particularly the majority leader with him. Mr. Curtis is also chairman of the senate committee on rules which committee would have to consider the change and recommend or disapprove it. A resolution embodying Mr. Dawes' ideas was introduced at the last session by Senator Underwood, of Alabama and will be reintroduced when the Senate meets again.

The vice-president has not said as yet what other states he plans to invade. He has several dates ahead and will not hesitate to appeal in every instance to the people to write letters to the senator in question urging him to support the Dawes proposal. He hopes to carry on his fight good naturedly and without personal hostility to anyone but he thinks that he can get more action by arousing the people to influence their senators than by personal conference himself with the senators.

Mr. Dawes is aware of the fact that when once the senate convenes he will not have an opportunity to absent himself from that body and make speeches and that his sole opportunity lies in the fact that must elapse before congress comes back here in December.

The vice-president has had no objection interposed to his course by President Coolidge though the latter refrains from making any public statement in support of the Dawes proposals. Mr. Coolidge, as a member of the executive branch of the government is said to feel that it would be improper for him to discuss the rules of procedure which under the constitution are matters solely for the two houses of congress to determine for themselves.

Member of Senate
Mr. Dawes, on the other hand, is really a member of the senate and has the right to cast a vote in it. He has also the right to speak to the senate in interpreting existing rules and some observers would not be surprised if Mr. Dawes broke another precedent by using his opportunities for comment to point out to the senate defects in existing rules and urge a change.

Since the vice-president stirred up the discussion of changes in the rules, some suggestions have been advanced that if he would modify his proposal so that cloture could be brought about quickly in the last ten days of a session in which the adjournment date is fixed his proposition would stand a better chance of winning out. Sentiment against one man filibusters in the last few days of a session is pronounced inside the senate itself but there is no chance of any proposal being carried which would give the majority the power to impose cloture at any time as is done by the rules of the house.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Governor Friend W. Richardson now becomes the center of interest at Sacramento with the various legislators, save two residents of the capital city, having returned to their respective homes. Already the chief executive has vetoed about a million dollars' worth of appropriations, including $150,000 for the Sonoma Industrial Home for Delinquent Women, contained in two bills sponsored by Assemblyman Frank C. Weller, Glendale.

The clubwomen of the state, it is said, desire that such an institution be established, basing their knowledge of delinquency on more or less partial facts. The clubwomen and the reformers wrote the Redlight Abatement act on the statute books without much knowledge of the subject with which they were dealing.

It was testified in committee hearing that there are at least 15,000 delinquent women in California, which means there are twenty to thirty times that number of men who do not recognize the moral standards set up by society. It doesn't seem that moral legislation has made much actual progress.

And it is because of cynicism, born of many officials' experience, that the governor refuses to sign such bills as those providing for the Sonoma home.

Traffic problems in Southern California would astound the northern cities, methinks. It takes a good driver to negotiate the San Fernando road from Newhall to Los Angeles. The roads to the beaches in Los Angeles county carry more traffic than 90 per cent of the highways of the north, any Sunday.

Glendale has more automobile traffic, with only half the population, than has Sacramento. San Francisco doesn't have one-fourth the number of cars Los Angeles has. Which goes to show the necessity for more trunk line boulevards in this vicinity and the public's co-operation in traffic regulation.

San Fernando road is to be paved through Glendale. While the contractors do not intend to shut the road to traffic, may it not be suggested that the Automobile Club map an alternative route for touring cars by way of Central avenue, Pacific avenue and Brand boulevard running north to Tenth street, Kenneth road, or Mountain street, running west into Burbank?

These three routes would do much to speed up traffic in the city and be left on San Fernando road during its repaving.

Traveling through the state, as the writer has recently, one cannot help being impressed with the agricultural potentialities of this great commonwealth. In the springtime, when cultivators of the soil are to be seen in the fields and gardens, when crops are growing green, fruit trees are in blossom and bearing, and rivers are running full, with the snow-capped peaks of the Sierras giving promise of a plentiful water supply, California looks good, no doubt, to the mid-western tourist.

Now is the time for your friends from the east to see the land of sunshine at its best. Speed their visit to California.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS GIVE YEGGS IDEA

Boulevard Stop Ordinance In Chicago Lets Bandits Reap Fortune

By O. L. SCOTT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.
CHICAGO, April 27.—The newest fad in highway robbery here, which is very likely to become popular in any city with automatic traffic signals, instead of opening a big new field for expansion in the bandit profession, is heading the highwaymen toward hard times.

Gun bandits had an exceptionally prosperous first quarter—profitable and enjoyable—because of the possibilities in the use of the stop-light traffic signals. During that period they held up 781 persons and garnered real returns.

The process for a good deal of this highway robbery was new and simple. The unsuspecting motorist, riding at night would come to one of the automatic street traffic signals set against him. He would draw up to a stop to find a pair of bandits waiting. They would jump in, bounce the driver into the back seat, drive off, and take their time fleeing whoever was in the car.

This system has worked almost perfectly, and has been largely responsible for the big increase in gun holdups. It has been successfully used time and again downtown on Michigan avenue, Chicago's principal thoroughfare.

Game Overplayed
But the bandits played their new card too well. They so aroused the state's attorney and the courts that on May 1 a special gun court, to handle nothing but gun cases, is to be set up as a branch of the criminal court with Chief Justice Hopkins himself as presiding judge. And the state's attorney is assigning two of his best prosecutors to jump on the bandits.

The object of the court is to give speedy and stern justice, where delay and "sloppy sentimentality," to use Justice Hopkins' words has formerly prevailed.

PLEAT PROMINENT IN FASHION'S ROW

Permanent Wrinkle Sought By Women as Vogue Is Accepted

By AILEEN LAMONT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Anybody can have a permanent wave in the hair but what women now are seeking is a permanent pleat in their frocks and skirts. The finer the pleating the shorter time it lasts and the vogue for this treatment of the fabric has forced many a woman to carry an electric iron around in her trunk when traveling in order to keep her costumes looking irreproachable.

The newest hat designed by the Paris milliners is known as the cabriolet hat to distinguish it from the smaller, or cab shapes. Both are small "one horse" hats but the cabriolet is the larger. One distinctive model just arrived, is of black picot straw lined with orange colored georgette. It is trimmed with black ostrich plumes and flat flowers made of orange ostrich plumes.

The sport colonies at Pinehurst and Hot Springs are making it evident that Balbriggan knit jerseys are to be used extensively this spring in the two piece sport frocks which usually have a matching coat to accompany them. In some designs, a crepe skirt is worn with a balbriggan jumper and white flannel coat.

Silver Fox Scarf
It is almost as important to be able to tell a Silver Fox scarf as to own one. From a distance, a pointed fox, with the white hairs inserted amidst the black looks the same but in a real Silver Fox each white hair has a bead of black at the tip, then band of white and at the base another touch of black.

The 1923 spring flapper must flutter after six p. m., rather than flop. The reason is that many of the evening frocks for young girls are of chiffon with a multiplicity of hanging panels, scarfs, flounces, flaring skirts and floating shoulder drapes. The colors are bright as those of a butterfly.

There will be a fellow feeling established at once between Miss Glenna Collett, great American golfer, now in England seeking fresh laurels, and the English sports women. For Miss Collett carries a cane. Not only that, but she carries it as though she were used to it. Many American women carry canes but usually they do so in the same manner a new Knight Templar manages his sword.

One out of every eight recruits for the British army is rejected, the main cause being ill health.

RADIOLAND NOTES RECENT CHANGES

Six Broadcasters Added To Country's List During Week Just Passed

By ROBERT MACK
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Only six new broadcasting stations were added to the list of the department of commerce this week. All of the six plants received class A licenses.

In addition to receiving the newcomers the department authorized four changes, three of which put stations already on the air officially into class B and the fourth transferred WEAY, the Iris Theatre, Houston, from class C to class A. WEAY will use 500 watts on 270 meters.

The three transfers to class B were WDWV, Cranston, R. I., 500 watts, 440.9 meters; WJAR, Providence, 500 watts, 305.9 meters; and WORD, the Batavia, Ills., 2000 watts, 275 meters. Although 275 meters is not recognized as a class B wave length, the Batavia station expressed its willingness to remain on that band provided it were permitted to jump its power to 2000 watts. Department officials believe that the increased power on the A wave length will not cause serious interference during the summer.

The six new class A stations are WJBD, Ashland, Wis., 100 watts, 233 meters; WFKB, Chicago, 100 watts, 215.3 meters; WJBC, La Salle, Ills., 100 watts, 234 meters; WCBZ, Chicago Heights, Ills., 50 watts, 213.7 meters; KFWF, St. Louis, 250 watts, 214.2 meters; and WNAB, Boston, 100 watts, 250 meters. The latter station WNAB is expected to be a supplementary station to WNAO, Boston, a class B plant.

It is notable that on the list of newcomers is none from the Pacific coast, which for weeks has not entered a new broadcaster.

Radio Conference
American and Canadian government radio officials will gather around the conference table in an attempt to find some way to eliminate the summer interference of spark transmitters aboard the lake vessels. Several commercial radio companies, as well as the steamship lines interested in the problem, will also be represented at the conference. Although it is realized that the spark transmitters will in time be replaced by continuous wave transmitters, thereby greatly minimizing the sources of interference, the present spark transmitters represent investments of considerable size which would be complete losses of C. W. apparatus were to be installed. There is no market in these days and times for the near-obsolete "rock crushers."

It is hoped however that some way may be found to bring all lake wireless traffic on wave lengths above 600 meters, and to make a survey of the present state of all of the spark transmitters. Fortunately for broadcast listeners of the lake coast cities, the ship interference is practically eliminated during the winter when the broadcast season is at its height. Among those who will attend the conference is W. D. Terrell, chief radio supervisor; Arthur Batchelor, supervisor of radio in New York; E. A. Beane, supervisor of radio in Chicago; W. Edwards, supervisor at Detroit; C. P. Edwards, director of radio service, Canada; and H. M. Short, general manager of the Canadian Marconi Co.

AIR CONTROVERSY ECHO IN ORDERS

Flying Officials of Army And Navy Told To Sell Stock In Magazine

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The air service controversy which had Congress excited some weeks ago and which finally resulted in the demotion of Brigadier-General William Mitchell, is not yet ended. The embers of the controversy still smolder under the surface. Today it was learned that flying officers of both the army and navy services, who have been associated with the Air Service Journal have been forced by their respective departments to sell their stock in the corporation publishing it and sever all connection with it.

The action was taken, according to flying officers who would not allow their names to be used because of fear of disciplinary action after the magazine, known as the United States air forces magazine, had been muzzled during the recent upheaval. The magazine has been published by the army and navy services association, composed of flying officers in both the army and navy of which Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, is president.

Associations of infantry, cavalry, artillery, quartermaster and other branches, similar in character to the air service officers' organization, publish similar magazines. No action has been taken with them. During the air service controversy it is alleged the magazine was prohibited from publishing any articles or editorials which had any bearing on the subject in any manner whatever.

SHOW GIRLS HELD UNDER RESTRAINT

English Misses Permitted
To Land In U. S. But Not To Love

By EDNA MARSHALL
Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
NEW YORK, April 27.—There are at least two show girls in New York for whom Broadway's bright lights and the attending stage door Johnnies hold no challenge. They dare not wink: They dare not smile. They dare not flirt with millionaire—or Adonis. The United States government says so. When Eileen Seymour and Margaret Greville were allowed to land in America a few days ago, they had to swear and stake their souls they would return to England in six months in exactly the condition in which they came—single and unengaged. They had to promise, too, that they would enter no other business arrangement than their agreement to act with Elsie Janis and her company. And for the few days they have been doing some numbers in the "Puzzles of 1925," they have kept religiously to their contract. They have not smiled at a man—except from the stage. They have passed the pie-eyed swains who mob the stage door of the theatre with noses held in the air and indifference stamped all over their faces. Hard Row to Hoe
But it has been hard. Eileen Seymour wagged her head of ruddy hair and rolled her blue eyes skyward yesterday. "I thought long and seriously before I agreed to come to America when Charles Dillingham told me it would mean foregoing all good times—and living between the settlements of my room and the theatre's stage with no recreation between," she said.
And Margaret Greville's big brown eyes looked sad. Together they had been bemoaning their fate in Marge's hotel room—having just turned down an invitation for a dinner party. "I never dreamed it would be as bad as all this when I came," she said mournfully. "I thought we could bat around—like the girls in the world—as long as we didn't get serious. But, it seems we aren't supposed to."
Poor Eileen. And poor Margaret. Because they are under age—just past 17—the immigration laws would not permit them to enter without a guardian and without a contract saying they would return in excellent condition and single to their motherland after their contract expires.
Boss Dillingham
The agreement was that any time a date should offer itself or a man become too serious in his

WOMAN SOLON IS FOR LAW CENSORS

Foster Move To Keep
Lawmakers 'Clean'

CHICAGO, April 27.—Mrs. J. Paul Goode, one of the four women members of the Illinois State Legislature, approves of the censor idea.
In a speech before the legislative round table of the City club here, she passed over the ideas of chaperone for the silver screen literature, drama and the Eighteenth Amendment and proposed having a Board of Censors to control the acts of the State Legislature.
"Once, when there was danger of war between the states of Connecticut and Pennsylvania because of some particularly reprehensible work ordered done by the Pennsylvania Legislature, the danger was averted by a singular feature of the Pennsylvania Constitution," she said. "In order to hold the Legislature in check, Pennsylvania had a board of censors meet every seven years to inquire whether the state had been governed properly in the interval. I would be willing that the City club should constitute such a council of censors over the state of Illinois."
Sweetening System
In addition to proposing this innovation, Mrs. Goode explained what she calls the "sweetening system of the legislative body."
Mrs. Goode complimented the legislators on their "generosity and consideration" to its women members. "We must have been very trying at times," said said.
"But, after all, I think it's worth it to have been on Broadway and to have had the chance to turn up my nose so righteously at any man alive."

LOWDEN FINALLY GETS TO CAPITAL

Man Who Turned Down Job
Dawes Got, Delegate
To Forest Meet

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
WASHINGTON, April 27.—The man who wouldn't be vice-president of the United States has come to Washington at last. Neither would he be secretary of the navy. Since a trick of fate cheated him out of what appeared to be certain nomination and election to the presidency in 1920 he has been the great decliner. President Harding wanted him in his cabinet, but he shook his head. The Republican national convention at Cleveland last year would not believe there lived a man who would turn down the nomination for vice-president. The delegates named Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois. He gave them the shock of their lives. He not only declined but he declined in a manner which left no room for doubt.
By that declaration Charles Dawes got his great opportunity to not only preside over the senate but to tell that august body exactly what he thought of it—and why.
At Convention
Governor Lowden likes to picture himself as a contented old farmer and it is in that role that he has come to Washington to preside over a meeting of the national committee arranging for the celebration of American Forest week, proclaimed by President Coolidge for April 17, to May 3. Governor Lowden doesn't pretend to be a forester. He doesn't know all the trees by their first names as does Gifford Pinchot, the forester-governor of Pennsylvania. But, the governor is a true enthusiast and he believes that trees should be grown like any other staple crop. It is neither fair nor wise to wait for nature to do all the work. Governor Lowden has proved that trees do grow upon the farm once they are planted.
In the midst of a busy life which led him through a self-earned education at college which took him from the country school to the law office, to congress and to the governor's mansion at Springfield, where Lincoln lies, Frank Lowden always has found time to take something more than an academic interest in the fellow-man and to give concrete expression to an inborn love for animals and all the creatures of the great outdoors, whether furred, feathered or just merely barked.
Boasts Ideal Farm
In the beautiful rock river valley of Illinois Governor Lowden has one of the finest farms in all

Belgrade Fast Losing Old Turkish Customs

BELGRADE, April 27.—Belgrade, one of the most famous and ancient cities of Central Europe, is slowly recovering from the effects of the World War, and the face of the city is rapidly changing in character. Instead of the old Turkish houses which were once a picturesque feature of the city, new structures such as banks, office buildings, storehouses, institutions and schools are springing up, while a network of street-car tracks and the American plan, is spreading over the city.
The municipal authorities have a big building program in hand, which includes the erection of several huge markets, new municipal buildings, and repaving of streets, laying of sewers, light and water mains.

RUSSIAN HISTORY

PRAGUE, April 27.—Reports from Russia state that the Soviet state publishers are shortly to issue a series of books dealing with the Romanovs and the last days of the Czarist regime.
The country. It is a model establishment and more than once it has lured its owner away from the toil and trouble of play. There was the lure of the White House for a time, but no position in the cabinet, no presiding chair in the Senate has been able to tempt him in recent years away from the soil and the birds and the animals and the trees. They are his life.
He has been willing to serve the public and the country by taking up the duties of chairman of the forest week committee, for he believes in the forest and the trees and the other works of nature and is desirous that the youth of trees and forests shall be borne in upon the public.
Plants 500,000 Trees
Governor Lowden's farm, which he calls Sinnissippi, is wonderful in many respects. Some idea of its size and variety may be gained by the fact that some years ago he superintended the planting of 500,000 northern pine trees on it. Pine trees are a somewhat unusual crop on a mid-west farm, but all who look upon those trees today would feel the owner's pride in them and understand his interest in forestry. The Lowden trees have grown to an almost uniform height of 25 feet and are clean, straight and dense. They have become a legally protected game preserve under the laws of Illinois. As he gazed down Pennsylvania avenue last week toward the stately dome of the capitol, a broad grin came to Frank Lowden. Perhaps he was thinking of Charlie Dawes. Perhaps he was thinking of Sinnissippi. But in any event he was happy and he was certain he had got the better of that argument at Cleveland last June.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Despite the development of the tractor and other power farm equipment the great American mule still is the hero of the motive department of American agriculture. The long-eared, loud voiced hybrid still continues to do a full share of the work despite the progress of motor propelled machinery.
The mule population of the United States has grown by nearly a million head in the period from 1914 to date, the count now totaling 5,411,000. According to the research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, the growers of cotton, tobacco, rice and sugar cane have given over almost entirely to the use of mules in preparing their crops as able to do the most work on the cheapest fuel and with the lowest grade of driver.
Mule Market
The leading mule markets of the country, St. Louis, Kansas City, Atlanta and others, show that demand for mules never has been so keen since these animals were used so extensively as can be seen from the receipts at the Kansas City market, for example, has been from 65 per cent horses and 35 per cent mules to 85 per cent mules and 15 per cent horses.
This does not reflect a lack of usefulness and popularity in the horse but it does reflect the trend toward mules as farm animals. The St. Louis horse market has been receiving two mules for one horse for over two years. The horse, like some of the farmers, is gravitating toward the cities.
Reasons Given
According to a survey made by the association, the details of which were outlined exclusively to the writer today, the main reason for this was that the horse was competing not only with the mule and the tractor for draft use on the farm but the steer, the dairy cow and the hog for the farmer's time and feed. The returns from the time and feed required have resulted in the horse being outbid and the latter has therefore been transferred to lines of usefulness where his work brought a higher return than on the farm.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 27.—Attorney-General Thomas H. Robinson, of Maryland, has been called on to solve a knotty legal problem which has been troubling state prison authorities.
The question is: Who gets the $970 found in the possession of Jack Hart, a lifer in the Maryland penitentiary, when he was recaptured in Chicago last winter after his daring break from prison?
The state of Maryland paid $500 for Hart's capture, paid detectives to hunt him and also paid for his transportation back to Baltimore. The state would like to be reimbursed from the $970.
The prisoner's wife, however, also claims the money, and as there is no proof that it was stolen, it is considered likely she will win her claim.
mule population since 1914 while the horse suffered a much higher loss both in number and total value. As an indication of the stern competition for the farmer's time and feed among the different classes of livestock, dairy cattle have increased 4,500,000 in number and $160,000,000 in money value in this eleven year period. Beef cattle increased 3,500,000 head but the total holdings fell off close to $150,000,000 in value. Sheep decreased over 10,000,000 head but their dollar value jumped up $172,000,000.
Flivver Steps In
The climate and colored farm hands have always combined to make the mule a favorite motive power in the south but the University of Missouri experimental station estimates that even in other sections the hybrid is more efficient in general for the work he does than other means of motive power when his average acreage of work is measured and his board bill paid. That is he turns out a high percentage of work for the fuel consumed.
The mule has been winning favor in the north for cultivation of crops as he turns easily and does not knock down much corn in working that crop. Since the farm tractor can take up the heavy jobs more efficiently and the mule and men can cultivate the row crops better, there has been a tendency to combine them and some farmers assert that although a mule cannot propagate they have succeeded so far as work is concerned in crossing a mule with a flivver.

SHIPPING BOARD ROW IS GROWING

Internal Dissension Arouses
President In Squabble
Over Ship Sale

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
WASHINGTON, April 27.—The row inside the shipping board is becoming more tense right along. Now it develops that Chairman O'Connor declined to let other members of the board see a copy of President Coolidge's letter inquiring about certain procedure of the board. And there is resentment expressed privately that the president is endeavoring to influence the course of the board, though by law he has no more jurisdiction over the board than he has over the Interstate Commerce commission.
The power of appointment is, of course, a broad jurisdiction in itself and Mr. Coolidge can decline to re-appoint a man who does not follow his wishes. Rumors and charges have been made that certain members of the board are asking the White House how to vote before doing so.
Mr. O'Connor is a Republican and is one of those who brought a delegation of laboring men to the White House during the last presidential campaign and it was afterwards argued that the expenses of the delegation were paid by the Republican organization. The chairman is in full sympathy with the president's policies and is said to be ready to carry out Mr. Coolidge's desires with respect to shipping.
Division of Opinion
The division of opinion on the board itself with respect to policy is non-political, however, because Vice-chairman Plummer of Maine, is a Republican and is out of sympathy with the latest move of the board to sell five big ships to the Dollar Line interests of the Pacific coast.
Mr. Coolidge never made a detailed statement in public of what he thinks should be done by the shipping board, but some members of the board seem to be agreed that his views would be welcomed by the country because the amount of public property held by the government as a consequence of war construction is so great that its disposition constitutes a trusteeship of prime importance. The oil lands of the United States were disposed of as a consequence of legislation which vested power in certain government departments but the president was held to be, in a sense, responsible for the policy pursued. And Mr. Coolidge appointed a commission to study the question of oil conservation. So, too, with respect to ships, Mr. Coolidge has an informal consulting commission outside of the shipping board to provide him with advice. He has almost from the start of his administration interested himself in a solution of the shipping problem.

Public in Dark
There is no indication, however, as to what progress he has personally made with the question. So far as the public is concerned he was merely inquiring as to what members of the board were supposedly joining the court action against the board, an interpretation, however, which was not justified by the facts as Mr. Coolidge found out on looking into the matter closely for the board was a unit in defending its four to three decision on the sale of ships when once that decision was made.
The big fleet of ships, which were acquired at a cost of billions of dollars are to be disposed of to private interests under the present law which provides that safeguards be given that a merchant marine be maintained and certain routes guaranteed.
Private operators have not been tempted to bid high for government ships under the circumstances because they have had to compete with foreign lines which derive a government subsidy. The subsidy policy was turned down by Congress for American shipping during the Harding administration.
Private Ownership
Private ownership is eager to get the government ships, but at low enough rates to make the enterprise profitable. Some members of the board are opposed to "bargains" at the expense of the government and think in the long run the government will be better protected in its desire for a merchant marine and ocean freight rates kept down if the annual appropriations can be kept to their present level and a fleet of ships kept in service.
One compromise suggested is that the government maintain the so-called unprofitable lines and the private owners be given possession of certain government ships for their own operation. In opposition to this is the view that if the government is to foot the bill for the unprofitable routes it should obtain the income from operating the profitable routes and save the taxpayers' money. These, at any rate are the issues of the shipping problem.
Germany can support about 40,000,000 people with the foodstuffs produced on her own soil.

DARKENED WINDOWS

By CORNELIA KANE RATHBONE

Copyright, D. Appleton & Co. Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

I came into the room to mend the fire before I went on the mistress' errand, innocent like, not knowing Mr. Hannibal was back, nor that you and him had had words. So in I came, and there he was at his desk writing. And 'Denis,' he says, 'After tonight her that was my daughter darkens my door no more. See to it,' he says, 'see to it that never a foot does she set inside it again.' Mind you that, my dearie, me to shut the door in your sweet face! And 'tis my will I'm changing,' he says, 'and not a penny piece does she get in it. Let her take her German, and be damned to them both.' And I pleaded with him, on my knees I pleaded with him, Miss Estelle dear, but naught, but a curse would he give me. And he wrote and wrote. 'Is it your will you're writing?' I asked him. 'It is,' he says, 'and not a penny of mine shall she have,' he says. And I stood behind him, and I saw his writing it down. And, in the open drawer to the side of him lay the pistol, and it called to me. And I slipped my hand in and I took it, like it hid me. Then I said a prayer for his poor, misguided soul, and I shot him—my dear master that I loved, that I'd served for years—

He broke into wild, mournful keening.

"The blessed saints know that I wouldn't have touched a hair of his dear head save to keep him from doing a wrong," he wailed. "Many's the wrong thing have I kept him from when he was small, but this time there was no staying him. God rest the soul of him, and forgive him! So that's how it was, you see, acushla, how I had to do it, and you won't be angry with your poor old Denny that has broke his heart for you!"

"And let them insult me and accuse me while you stood there and said nothing," she cried, the hurt savage in her breaking loose. "Don't, my dearie, don't now," he pleaded. "Sure, I didn't take it in what they were saying—not till the end I didn't. Else wouldn't I have been crying it out to the whole world!"

"That may be, but how do you excuse your accusing Mrs. Hurst of the crime just to save your miserable old life?" broke in Graham hotly.

"Ah, it was mad I was entirely that night, Mr. Graham, though that's no excuse for me, I know well. But our Blessed Lady knows 'twas not my life I was careful of—what's my life to me! 'Twas being taken away from Miss Estelle I thought of—never for her any more, never seeing her sweet face again, never feeling her hand in mine when the end came—'twas that I was feared for. But for blaming it on the mistress, may God forgive me! 'Twas out of my head I went, seeing the blood on her sleeve and all, that's what it was—out of my head I must have been, the way they'd think a thief had broke in and shot the master. You see, the money in the safe, 'twas I that took it and hid it—the way they'll think 'twas a thief, say I. 'Old Denis is sharp till—sharp still! Then out of my head I went and forgot how I'd fixed it, and cried out on the mistress."

"Where did you hide that money?" questioned Flint. "There isn't a nook or a cranny in this house my haven haven't been over." "I hid it where you won't find it, Mr. Flint. 'Tis safe as it is with the one that owns it. Sure, I couldn't steal it from Mr. Hannibal, could I, now! I just gave it back to him—barring enough to have masses said for his poor soul. They'd laid him quiet in his coffin, down below in the big grand room. Cold alone he lay there, with nobody to watch nor to weep by him. And I slipped in and talked to him, him and me alone in the dark. And I told him how it was—how I had to do it though it broke my heart. And it came to me that he understood, like he used to understand at long last, when he was small and naughty and I had to thwart him. And I said a prayer by him, and then I slipped the money in beside him, deep down where none could see."

He turned back to Estelle, intent only that she should understand.

"'Twas for you I did it, Miss Estelle dear. You wouldn't have wanted I should let him leave you penniless, my darling." He stretched out a pleading hand, but it fell at her glance.

As far as Graham could see, she was neither horrified by his crime nor touched by his love for her. The almost Homeric tragedy of his act escaped her. He was a servant who had blundered, and a blundering had injured her, that was all. No crime, in her eyes, was as great as that. Cruel as the tiger-cat Graham in his thoughts had likened her to, she had no pity.

"You did it for me, you say!" she cried. "Do you want to know what it is you have done for me? You've made me believe the man I love to be a thief and a murderer; you have given me weeks of misery. He was in danger and I might have been with him; I would have saved him; he would be free now but for you! We would be together, safe and free. His work was done; we were going away that very night. You have ruined my whole life, that is what you have done for me!"

Her words lashed him to his knees. "Oh, my darling, my own little child, for the love of our Lady—" he implored, clutching, in vain, at the skirt of her gown with the hands which had served her all the days of her life. But she only cast at him a look of loathing, and tore her dress roughly from his hold.

"Call your men up, Mr. Flint. I want him out of my sight," she said.

Flint made no move. He was watching Denis, who had staggered to his feet, and now stood, swaying uncertainly, his anguished eyes fixed on the face which had been their light. In his failing mind incredulity struggled with an agony of comprehension. She meant it—she meant it all!

"If suffering atones for sin there will be no purgatory for Denis," whispered Graham to Flint.

Flint sighed. "Detectives ought to be born without feelings," he said. "I've won! I've played my little piece on old Denis' heart-strings, and I've won. Almost wish to God now that I hadn't!"

"If you hadn't I'd have arrested one of the women and made a fool of myself," said Bretman, who had left his corner and joined them; "or I'd have gone on combing the town for your thief, Mr. Graham, till my hair turned white."

"I don't see how you knew, Flint," said Graham.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Copyright, 1925, By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

One day, as Uncle Wiggily sat in his hollow stump bungalow, reading the Cabbage Leaf newspaper to find out about the weather, he saw his muskrat lady housekeeper, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, leaping about the room. "Whatever are you doing, Janie?" asked Mr. Longears. "Are you skipping rope?" And yet he knew she couldn't be doing that for she had no rope.

"I am trying to catch a flying moth on her," answered Nurse Jane, making another leap in the air.

"Why do you want to catch a moth on her?" asked the rabbit, curious like and unsatisfied. "Are you playing tag with him?"

Then Nurse Jane clapped her paws together and said: "I got him!" And then she explained to Uncle Wiggily that in the spring moth millers, or tiny butterflies, floated about seeking places to lay their eggs so that moths, which are tiny worms, or grubs, would hatch in the summer.

"The moth millers lay their eggs in woolen or fur garments," explained Nurse Jane, "and when the little worms hatch they start in to eat every bit of wool, fur or feathers they can find. I'm afraid some moths will get into my fur coat, and I wish you would take it to the store and have it put in the ice box for the summer."

"What good will that do?" asked the bunny.

"Moth millers will not lay their eggs in cold water, for they know the eggs won't hatch," said Nurse Jane. "I must send my fur coat to cold storage. Will you take it for me?"

Uncle Wiggily kindly said he would and off he started.

Besides Nurse Jane's fur coat Uncle Wiggily took with him an old fur rug he found out in his garage. In the winter he used the fur rug to keep Nurse Jane's paws warm when she rode in his automobile.

"But we don't need a fur rug, with summer coming soon," said the bunny. "And if I leave it in the garage the moths may eat it. So I'll take that to cold storage also."

Now While Uncle Wiggily was hopping along, carrying the old fur rug on one paw and Nurse Jane's nice fur coat on the other, Red Wing, the kind old mud turtle gentleman, Mr. Slow Poke has eyes near the top of his head and could look up in the air better than could the bunny. So it happened that Mr. Slow Poke saw the hawk soaring down.

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily!" said the mud turtle. "hop as fast as you can! Red Wing, the hawk, is coming to get you!"

"What about you?" asked the rabbit, getting ready to spring away.

"I will draw my head and my legs and my tail inside my hard shell, and not even an eagle can stick his claws in me," said Mr. Slow Poke. "I shall be all right, but watch out for yourself!"

So Uncle Wiggily started to hop away, but he was almost too late, for the hawk swooped down after him, hissing:

"I want you! I want you for my hungry little ones!" Red Wing flew after Uncle Wiggily, and was just going to dig his claws in the back of the bunny gentleman, when Uncle Wiggily thought of the old fur rug, which he really didn't want any more.

"I'll drop this rug on the ground and fool the hawk," he whispered. The bunny dropped the rug in a heap on the ground, and then, seeing a hollow log, he jumped into it and hid there, safe from harm.

"Ah! Now I have you!" hissed Red Wing and he clutched the piece of fur in his claws and soared up with it. Flying to his nest high in a tree, Red Wing cried: "I have brought you a fat rabbit, little hawk!" But when they tried to eat it, all they had was an old fur rug.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny as he hopped out of the hollow log. "Red Wing didn't get me that time."

Diet and Health

DIET IN ACUTE AND CHRONIC BRIGHT'S DISEASE

The technical name for the inflammation of the kidneys is Nephritis. (The termination "itis" means "inflammation.") It is most often called, even in medical circles, Bright's Disease, in honor of Dr. Bright of London who, about 100 years ago, was the first to describe the condition.

Before I tell you of the diet in acute and chronic Bright's disease, I must tell you a little of the kidneys.

The work of the kidneys consists of filtering all of the blood and taking out the larger share of the soluble waste products (mostly the protein waste) which it is more or less loaded. The cells of the kidneys show an uncanny intelligence. In one portion they permit the filtration through the capillary walls of the blood and the waste products, and in another portion other cells absorb any of the products of the blood which have passed through but are still needed by the body.

It is just as if some of the cells were sort of overseers that closely guard the work of the cells which permit the filtration, so that nothing vital is lost from the blood and only the waste products and the excess water are allowed to get by in the form we know as urine.

In this way they help maintain the normal composition of the blood and body fluids.

If one kidney has to be removed for any reason, the remaining one gallantly enlarges and does the work of the two.

You can see from this description that we should treat the kidneys with profound respect. They are patient and long suffering but if we permit our blood to get loaded with too much waste material or poisons of any kind, eventually they suffer and cannot carry on.

The kidneys are most often acutely injured by bacterial poisons and the bacteria themselves, which get into the blood from infected spots anywhere in the body (such as infected tonsils, teeth, and nasal sinuses) and from the acute infectious diseases such as scarlet fever, pneumonia, diphtheria, etcetera.

The kidneys can also be injured by poisons such as lead and arsenic, alcohol and other drugs. There is no doubt but that they can be slowly but surely injured by having to overwork on blood which is loaded with waste products.

YOUTHFUL CHINS

If you are any age from 25 on you must watch the soft flesh under the chin for the first sign of looseness or bagginess. There is a little space about two inches square where the chin and the neck meet where the skin will begin to pucker if you are not careful.

This puckering is a sign of age, but one that is easily remedied. If the skin is dry rub the chin vigorously with flesh building cream, massaging from the chin down the front of the throat, back and forth over the puckered part. Wipe off what cream remains on the surface of the skin and powder. Being dry the skin will absorb the oils that have been rubbed into it.

If the complexion is not naturally dry, an astringent treatment will do away with the puckers. Rub the skin first with a little cleansing cream, wipe off thoroughly, and then rub the chin and throat for five minutes with a piece of ice wrapped in a bit of cheesecloth. You will be surprised to see how quickly the skin smooths out again and the difference it makes in your appearance, for an old looking chin is bound to add years to your age.

These are "first" treatments. Often the skin goes like this after an illness or even a change from wet to dry weather, or from a moist to a dry climate. The condition is temporary then, but the treatment should not be neglected. If the condition has existed for some time I would suggest that once a week you rub the skin full of warm cocoa butter until you have quite a thick layer on, cover with a piece of oiled silk, then make a chin strap from strips of old muslin binding them under the chin and over the head, making the bandage as snug as possible so as to hold in the loose skin. Wear this all night.

A Constant Reader: You can purchase the old fashioned oatmeal at most large grocery stores. It may be possible to speak of it as being powdered, as it comes in very small grains filled with powder. If you can get a flour Charming in all its appointments and one of the loveliest affairs of the April social calendar was the trousseau tea, with which Mrs. John T. Crampton of 425 Burchett street, entertained Saturday in honor of her daughter, Miss Grace Crampton, whose marriage will take place this week.

For decorations a springtime motif was carried out effectively with choice roses, clusters of Karl Druschki pink Maman Cochet, and saffron-color tea roses. Baskets of white syringa blossoms further emphasized the coming of spring. The tea table was most artistic with candles of rose pink and a large bowl of roses of harmonizing shades.

Elaborate Gloves

The winter discontent of the silk glove is now giving way to the glorious summer of popularity. Fashion decrees the ornamental and frilly cuff and the gloves excellently to provide the desired effects. The cuffs are embroidered, shirred, piped, ruffled and even scrambled. The short gloves are almost universally worn when the spring frock of the wearer is sleeveless.

The snappy roadster and the beautiful spring days are bringing out some remarkably attractive motor costumes. One of the most striking of these seen on a Westchester road today consisted of a short jacket of gold kidskin trimmed with shaggy blue fox fur. With this was worn a gold lame turban, its folds closely wound and following the contour of the head.

Boy Escapes Death In Jump From Bridge

BALTIMORE, April 27.—By a miraculous quirk of fate 16-year-old Leo Lombardi was saved from a cruel death when he attempted to end his life by jumping from North avenue bridge into the path of an onrushing freight train.

Misjudging the speed of the approaching train, the boy hesitated too long before leaping, landing on top of a box car. When he was found by a railroad employe, when the box car was pushed onto a siding at Mount Winans, seven miles from the place where he made his leap. Although suffering from concussion of the brain Lombardi is expected to recover. The boy was despondent at his inability to find work.

SCOTCH IN TWEEDS TAKES NEW TURN

Shading In Material for Women's Wear Changed By Scotch Makers

By AILEEN LAMONT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Scotch tweed manufacturers are extremely unlikely to shade their prices but they are shading the colors of their materials. This is an innovation, for tweeds heretofore have been of the same shade from side to side. One long coat designed for the racing opening at Jamaica and brought from London is of shaded tweed deepening from a light fawn at the top to a cinnamon and then to a deep brown at the border.

At least three great French perfumers are complaining bitterly over the pirating of their favorite brands and odors by concerns in this country. So far, court action has failed to stop the practice entirely, and duplication is frequently able to market their products in the same shaped flasks as the original.

One odor, however, known as white narcissus, has not yet been duplicated. It required fourteen years of experiments to develop it. Over the top has taken on a new meaning so far as hats are concerned. There is an unmistakable trend reported by Paris dispatches toward arranging the trimming on the new small hats from one ear to the other over the crown. For example, a black half-tuck straw, just imported, has for trimming a band of black buckskin, edged with silver, passing across the crown with a silver buckle at the top.

Alhambra won first place in class III, one-year students' team, Glendale coming in second place by making one point less. Eleven-Year-Old Boy Rescues Baby, 2 Years

BRESCIA, Italy, April 27.—The heroic rescue of a two-year-old baby by an eleven-year-old boy recently was enacted here.

The child had wandered away from its governess and fallen from a terrace on the border of a nearby lake into the water, which at that place was about twelve feet deep.

Hearing the cries for help which the nursemaid set up on discovering the baby's plight, Pietro Negrinelli, eleven, rushed to the scene and, not stopping to disrobe, threw himself into the water. He seized the baby's dress with his teeth and struggled with his burden to a nearby dock, where he held on, exhausted, until bystanders were able to lift the pair onto dry land.

FETCHET TO TAKE MITCHELL'S PLACE

Colonel 'Jim' Waiting to Wear Stars Now On 'Flying General'

and uncle had fought in the Civil war. "Jim" Fetchet, who is new to Washington, never having been much of a bureau soldier, has known the meaning of discipline from his youth. He has seen that the regular order wins out in the end. One look into his calm clear eyes, one glance at the cut of his soldier jaw, and you have confidence in "Jim" Fetchet.

Of course "Billy" Mitchell's buddies will never forgive "Jim" Fetchet. They will never forgive anybody that ever had a chance to succeed their "flying general." But Jim is a flying man too, and he will be a flying general just as soon as he takes up the temporary stars about to be discarded by Mitchell as he returns to his regular rank of colonel in the army.

It will always be held against Jim Fetchet, too, by the Mitchell partisans that he saw no active service in France during the war. Fetchet was kept on this side of the water, in command of the great flying schools. It was his business to turn out the flying and fighting material which was fit to go to France. There was no limelight beating about him. He had no chance for the glories of foreign decoration. His was the constant drudgery "back of the lines"—the vast work of preparation without which no war could go on.

Those who know Jim Fetchet here in Washington know that General Patrick, chief of the air service, is going to have a capable, efficient, a sure-fire assistant. It is well to bring General Patrick into a story like this, for he has been almost lost sight of lately. The country has gained an impression that Billy Mitchell was the head of the service. In fact in one state an official school questionnaire so rated General Mitchell and gave 100 to every student who said he was chief.

Col. Fetchet, who this week will be general, is the descendant of an old French Huguenot family, and the name is pronounced "Fesh-Shay." His father was Col. Edmund Gustave Fetchet, breveted for gallantry in action at Antietam. The son grew up in army posts, in the atmosphere of the cavalry. He did not get to West Point, however, and was preparing himself as a mechanical engineer when the war with Spain came along.

CITY COUNCIL TO DISCUSS CARFARE

New Officials Meet Tonight To Learn Status Of Lower Rate Fight

Measures to be taken by the city of Glendale to obtain a reduction in fares over the Pacific Electric between Los Angeles and this city will be discussed at a special committee meeting tonight of the new City Council.

This will be followed by a joint meeting in executive session at the city hall tomorrow morning with the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, prior to the regular meeting of the council at 10 o'clock. It will be the first concrete action that has been taken by the council since the appointment several weeks ago of Attorney Robert Young to assist City Attorney Ray Morrow. Tonight's meeting will be primarily for the purpose of advising new council members of the present status of the situation.

Agreement Signed
Young was named to aid in the drafting of a petition for a hearing of the arguments and to take part in the hearings. The former council appropriated $2000 from the unappropriated reserve to cover the cost of legal and engineering expenses in connection with the forthcoming action for reduced fares.

Under the pact with Young, entered into by and between former Mayor Spencer Robinson, acting for the city of Glendale, and Young, the city was to pay the necessary expenses, bills and fees, including fees of expert engineers and witnesses, the experts to be satisfactory to Attorney Young.

Young was to receive as his compensation a retaining fee of $1000, one-half of which was paid on entering into the agreement; the other $500 to be paid when the proceeding is ready for hearing before the State Railroad commission. In addition, he was to receive $50 per day for each day actually spent in hearing the proceeding before the commission or in the courts, and for every day he is absent from his home in Los Angeles in connection with the case.

By HARRY FLORY
For International News Service.
LONDON, April 27.—Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to the court of St. James, presented his credentials to King George today. The king's reception of the American diplomat, carried out with full panoply on the sovereign's part and formally by the American embassy staff, was the king's first official act since his return from the Mediterranean.

King George sent Sir John Hanbury Williams to Crewe house with three state coaches to bring Ambassador Houghton and the embassy staff to the palace. Sir John himself was in full regalia and white wigged postillions drove the coaches.

Knickerbockers Minus
The new ambassador and seven attending members of the embassy were in full evening dress but eschewed knickerbockers. Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, was present when the ambassador presented his credentials to the king, and after the ceremony, chatted with Mr. Houghton, discussing American affairs and American friends.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, April 27.—The stock market was unsettled today, when heavy offerings poured into the speculative district in the early trading and continued until well after the noon period. Then a recovery set in and after prices were on the mend, though not in every case did they regain their former price levels.

Bearish traders attempted to stampede the market as a result of the general uneasiness and uncertainty with respect to the election of von Hindenburg as president of the German republic. Their efforts were not successful, though buying was not brisk and the weight of offerings forced prices downward.

Offerings were comparatively small at the lower price ranges and sales up to the noon hour were less than 500,000 shares.

A few of the railroad stocks were ready to move upward as soon as selling pressure was lifted. Among them were Reading, Frisco common and the Missouri Pacific stocks. Missouri, Kansas and Texas was strong on a small volume of selling. The same might be said for the independent oil stocks, which were conspicuously active when industrial shares were being poured out at declines from 2 to 5 points.

Current prices for oil shares have been favorable for accumulation, which would be desirable only if the oil industry gave promise of improvement. This would be accomplished only by the continued increase in gasoline consumption and the decline in crude oil output, until such time as the accumulations of the last three or four years have been worked into channels of consumption.

Motor stocks slid down the hill in the first period, but bears found it a little difficult to cover at the lower levels. Maxwell, General Motors and Mack Trucks recovered sharply.

Cast Iron Pipe easily rose 8 points, from 134, when covering by the shorts became urgent and the forward movement became more aggressive in American Can, Baldwin, Steel, Coca-Cola, Mack Trucks and Universal Pipe. Commercial Solvents recovered 8 points, at 89. There was no change in the money situation.

Shorts in Cast Iron Pipe and Commercial Solvents were sharply squeezed in the last hour, when prices advanced 15 points each. Cast Iron Pipe reached 150 and Solvents, at 96, was up 15 points for the day. Baldwin, American Can and General Electric rose from 3 to 4 points above the low of the second hour. Motor and Industrial stocks staged a good recovery when covering became more urgent.

Apprehension as to the effects of the German election was swept away by the reassuring statements of American banking and business leaders, and the oversold condition of the market gave the bulls opportunity to hustle the bears in a corner. Railroad stocks were steady near the close, under the leadership of Reading, Seaboard Air Line preferred and a few of the investment rails. Coca-Cola equalled its previous high record at 134.

Stocks sold, $93,300 shares; bonds, $1,813,000.

The market for prime mercantile paper was dull. Call money in London today was 3 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange was steady, with business in bankers' bills at $4.89 1/2 for demand.

MARKET SUMMARY

LOS ANGELES, April 27.—California sheep men are increasing their output. Mutton, lambs and wool are bringing good profit, but according to some of the growers here, plungers would have the United States go into the sheep business on a much larger scale and they take no notice of conditions and refuse to admit the fact that there are other countries in the world which are wool producers. The United States produces 50 per cent of the wool it consumes.

Weekly trade reports are rather mixed, but on the whole are fairly encouraging.

For the eleventh week there has been an increase in employment in Detroit, according to information over the brokerage wires of E. F. Hutton & Co.

General Electric is reported to have perfected a radio invention that promises to revolutionize the radio industry.

United States Steel unfilled orders for the first quarter are estimated to have increased 40,000 to

GERARD CALLS ELECTION MENACE

Result of German Balloting
Forerunner to Monarch,
Says Former Envoy

NEW YORK, April 27.—"The election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as president of Germany is a menace to the peace of the world and is a flat declaration by the German people of a return to militarism and monarchy," James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, declared today.

"Hindenburg's selection is due partly to the swing toward conservatism, which has been in evidence in this country and in England," said Gerard, "and also the fact that von Hindenburg is the only person whose reputation survived the war in Germany."

Hindenburg's Program Is Awaited By World

tempt to deny that they believed that the revival of Hindenburg also meant the revival of the time-honored "goose-step" and other allures of German militarism. The Hindenburg supporters said his election meant only a greater regard for the progress of Germany through more definite negotiations with the allies.

Hindenburg is expected to take office about May 15. The present cabinet will within a few days offer its resignation to Hindenburg and he will ask it to remain in office for the time being, it was said.

Hindenburg received the news at the estate of a friend near Lüneburg. He will come to Berlin Thursday and prepare to take office, his friends said.

A feature of the big vote Hindenburg polled and somewhat of a surprise was that cast for him in the labor and industrial centers.

What Newspapers Say
The Nationalist newspapers warned the Nationalists against a premature jubilee. They said "The work of recovery has only begun." The democratic papers were trying to appear good losers. They said, "Sentimentality was over the political sense." The Tagblatt laid Hindenburg's victory to the unshakable popularity of the former field marshal and the Communist hatred of the Socialists.

The Rote Fahne, freely translated "red flag," said the victory was due to the Socialists' "treason." The Deutscher Zeitung quoted Hindenburg's words:

"My two hands for the fatherland, and they may be hacked off, but nothing for the parties."

The paper added its own comment: "God did not forsake Germany this time."

Will Not Take Orders From Any Party, Asserts Leader

By Special Correspondent of Hanover Courier and International News Service

LUNENBURG, Germany, April 27.—"I will not take orders from any party, and no one need think I will," declared President-Elect Paul von Hindenburg to International News Service today in commenting on his election.

"I am willing to grasp the hand of any German, including my former opponents, and I will grasp it heartily and without reserve in the common work for the good of our country."

A close friend of Hindenburg said:

"Man-like, Hindenburg did not vote for himself. He retired early last night, saying, 'May the result be such as will serve the best interests of the whole nation.'"

"He arose at 8 o'clock this morning and received the news in grave silence. He carefully and without comment studied the figures. His first comment came several hours later when congratulations were conveyed from an adjoining estate. Then Hindenburg said:

"There is going to be a lot of talk about Germany arming and getting ready for another war. I do not believe there will be anything of the sort. Germany is disarmed. She could not arm if she wanted to, and I don't believe she wants to. I expect to see a strong effort on the part of Germany to retain the good will of the world."

The world in general and in Europe in particular will be better off, Borah believes, with a strong, stable Germany than with a weak and chaotic Germany.

"I think," he continued, "that the world had better proceed on the theory that the German people have the right to elect the man they want."

Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, the leading exponent in the Senate of Woodrow Wilson's foreign policies, expressed somewhat different views.

"The victory of von Hindenburg puts Germany under suspicion," he said. "European affairs have again been made uncertain and possibly threatening. The only way this uncertainty and suspicion can be removed is for the victors in this election to indicate a desire for peace and repudiation of the past military ambitions of Germany."

Administration officials and diplomats generally declined to be quoted, on the ground that such comment might be interpreted as "meddling" in Germany's internal affairs.

There was general agreement that "Europe is going to be skittish for some time, as one of the great powers has been elected as a recrudescence of the old military spirit and there will be a stiffening of the nationalistic movement in France, as well as in the other countries whose borders touch Germany."

foreign office brought out. They were given as follows: First, criminal deportation; second, abduction of women and children; third, armed looting; fourth, destruction by dynamite; fifth, incendiarism; sixth, criminal measures against civilians; seventh, alleged medical inspection of women and young girls; eighth, violation of graves in cemeteries; ninth, pollution of water supply; tenth, destruction of forests; eleventh, pillage of food supplies of the United States destined to interned civilian population.

The French opinion as reflected by the newspapers, follows:

The Morning Press: "The German election was a struggle between a political republic and a bellicose monarchy and which, unhappily for France, was a military victory."

The Matin: "The election of Von Hindenburg constitutes defiance toward France and the great disappointment to England and America."

The Journal: "It is difficult now to believe in the German people's peaceful sentiment. Hindenburg means the willful destruction of the Dawes plan which Hindenburg has already condemned as not being possible of execution."

The Echo de Paris: "The election proves beyond doubt that there does not exist a new Germany, as England and America have thought."
